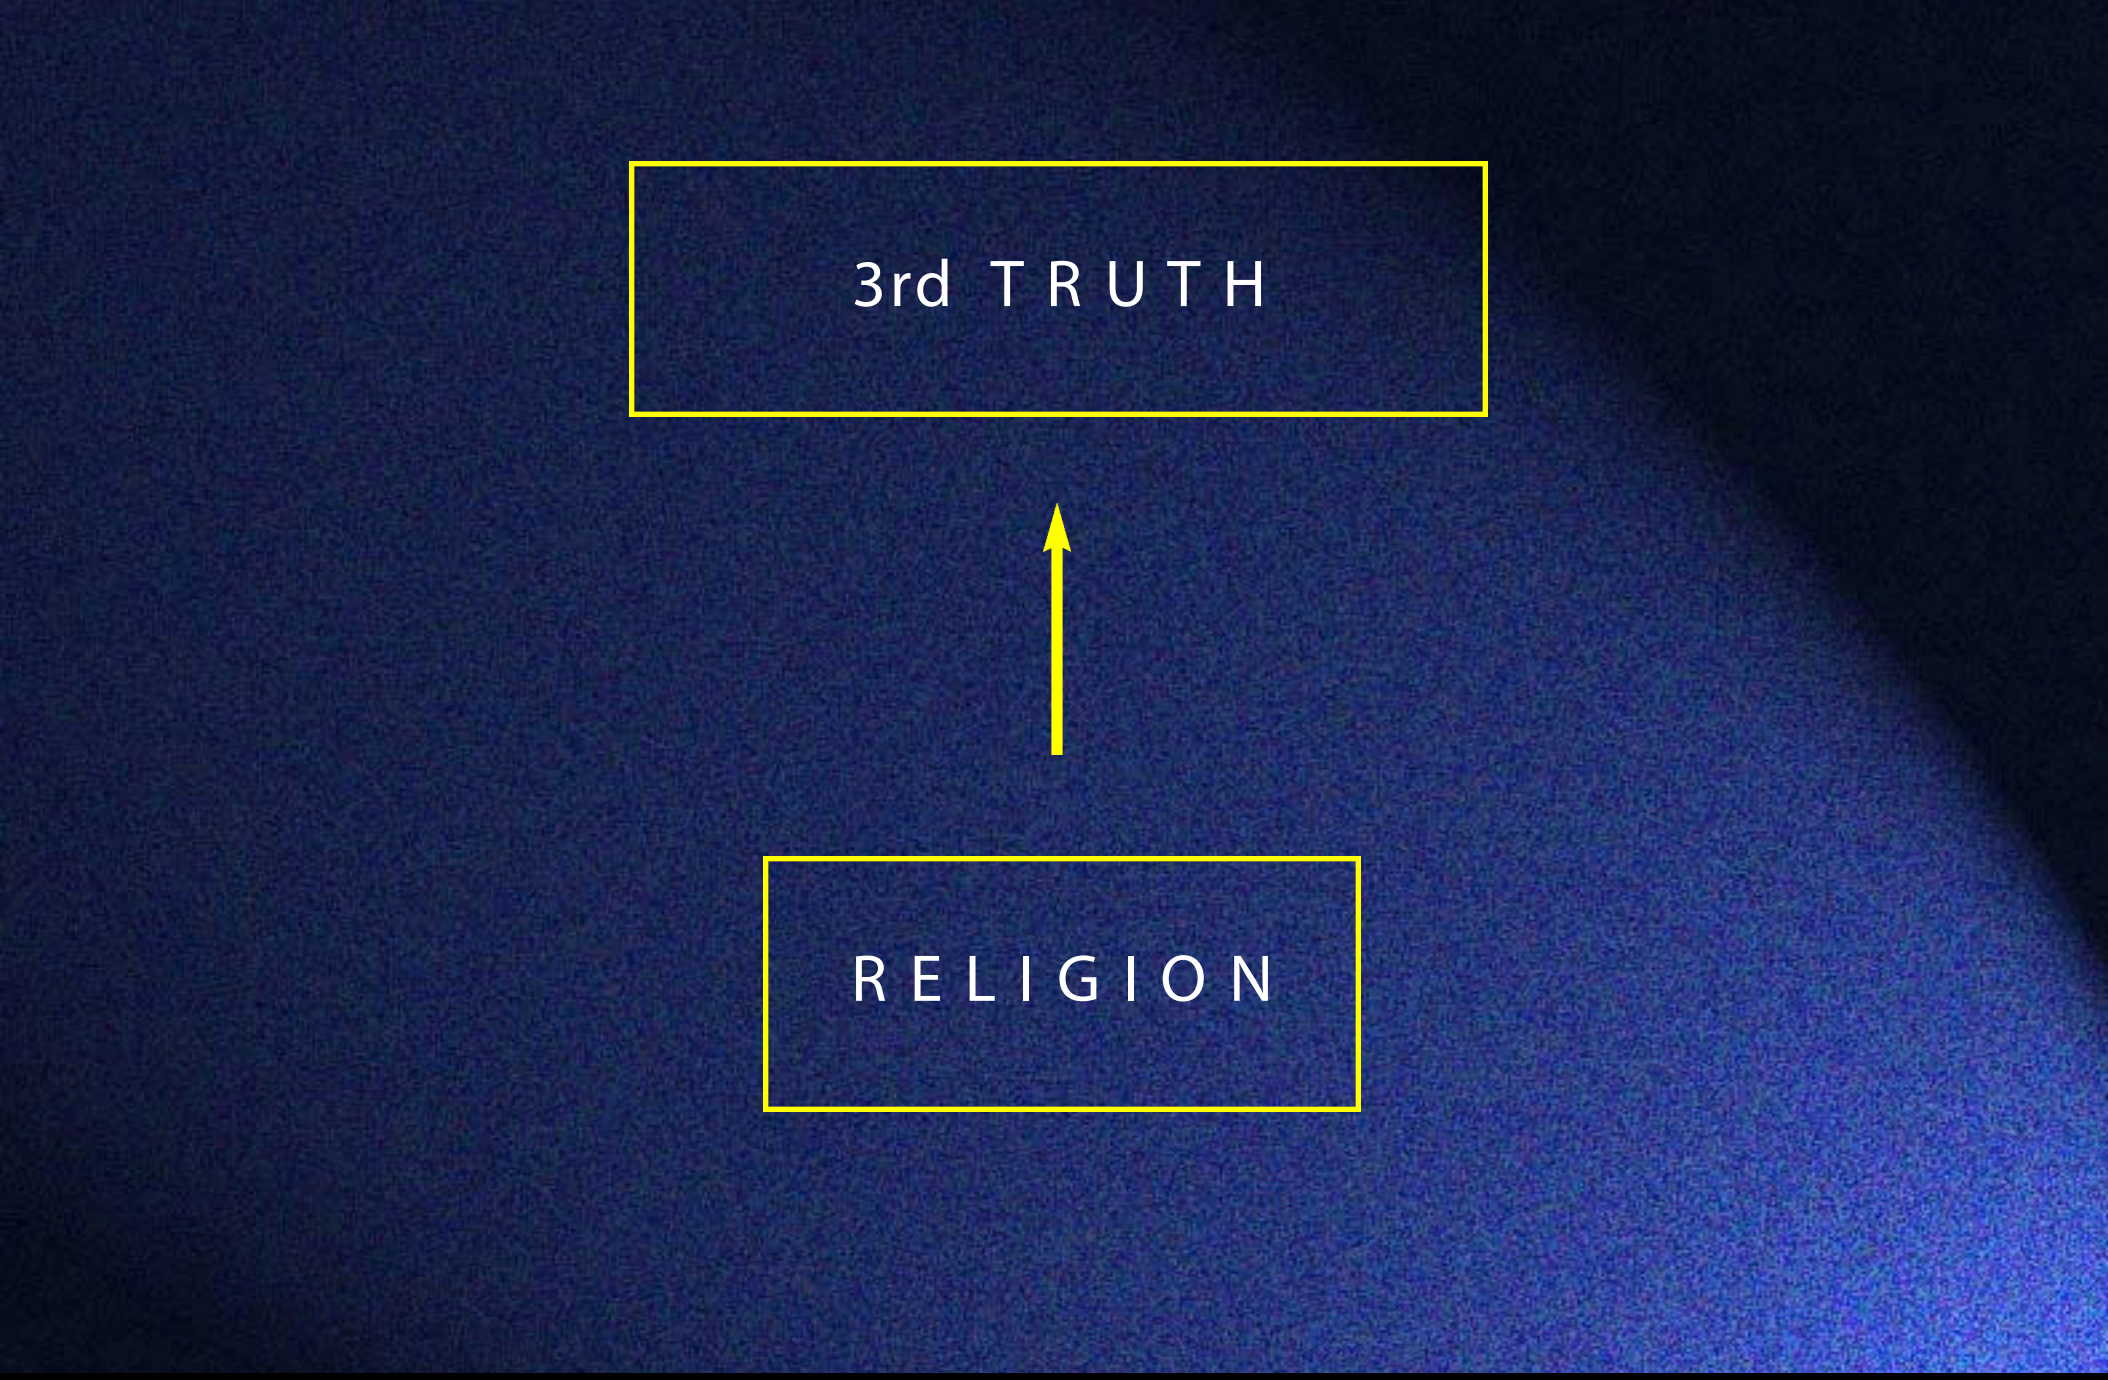
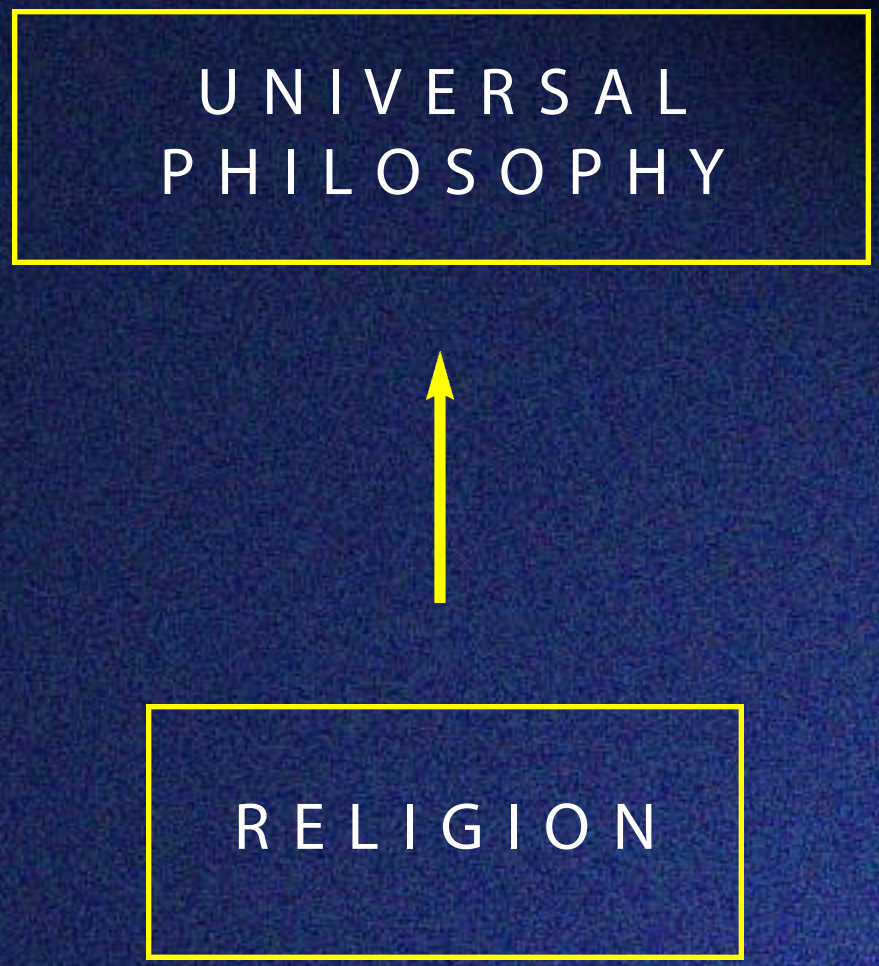
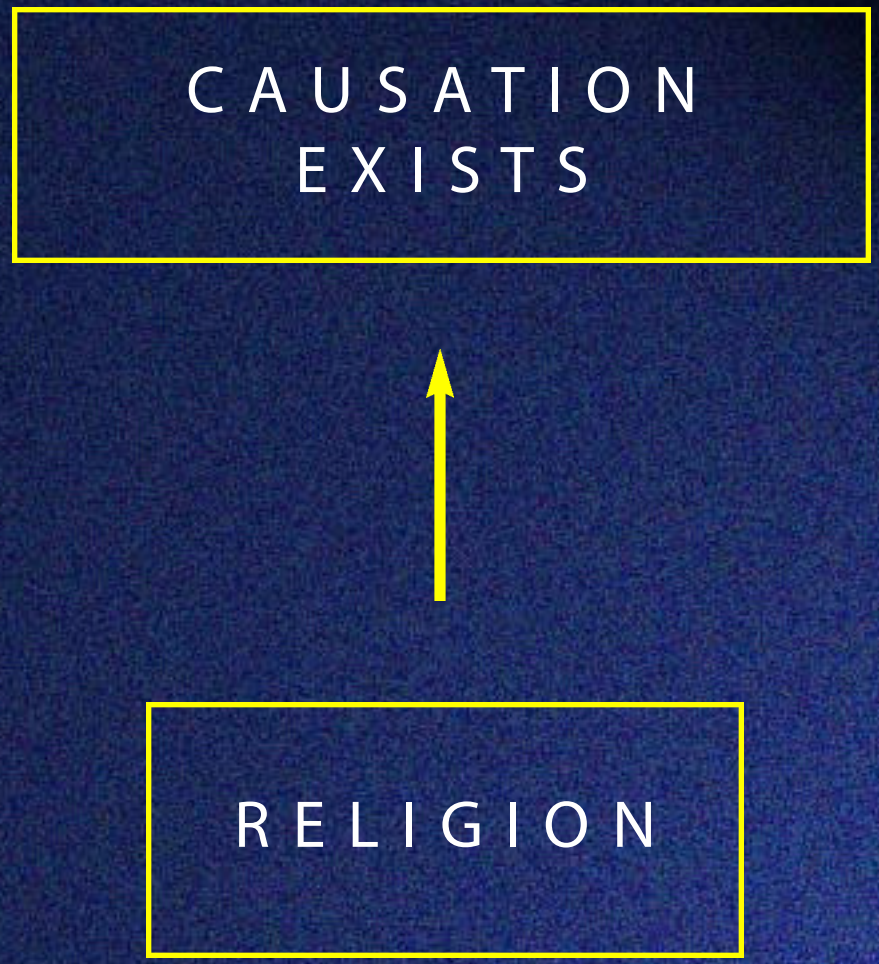
"Truth Three - Causation Exists"



From religion - what we believe - comes the third ‘truth’,

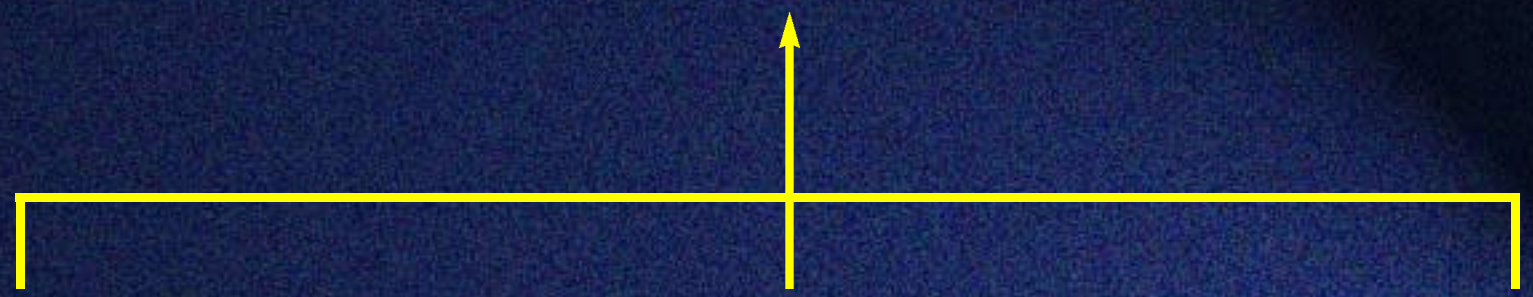


the third building block for a Universal Philosophy:



‘Causation Exists’.

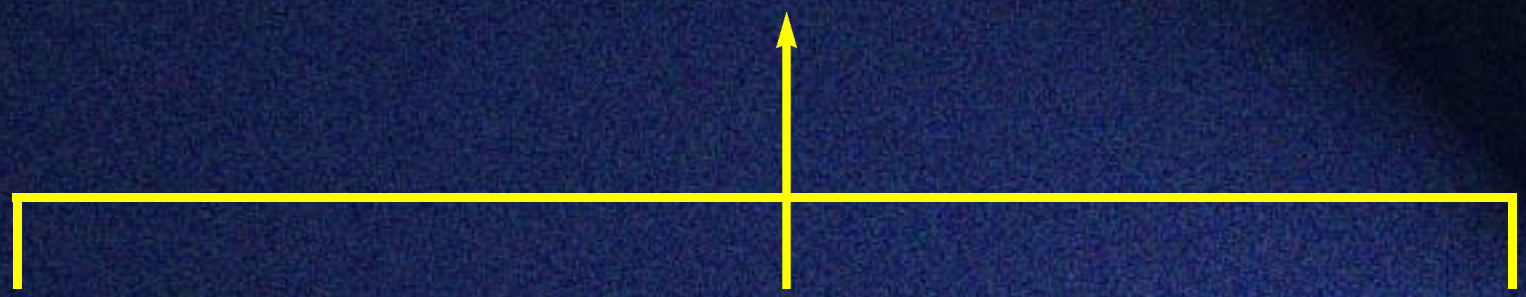
CAUSATION EXISTS



SCIENCE	RELIGION	PHILOSOPHY
Observation	Faith	Reason

It is religion which leads the way in terms of this ‘truth’
not science or philosophy.

CAUSATION EXISTS



SCIENCE	RELIGION	PHILOSOPHY
Observation	Faith	Reason

It is what we believe - faith - over even observation and reason which provides us with the greatest assurance that causation, God, a causative force to the Universe exists.

RELIGION

Faith

It is religion which initiated the concept of the earth,

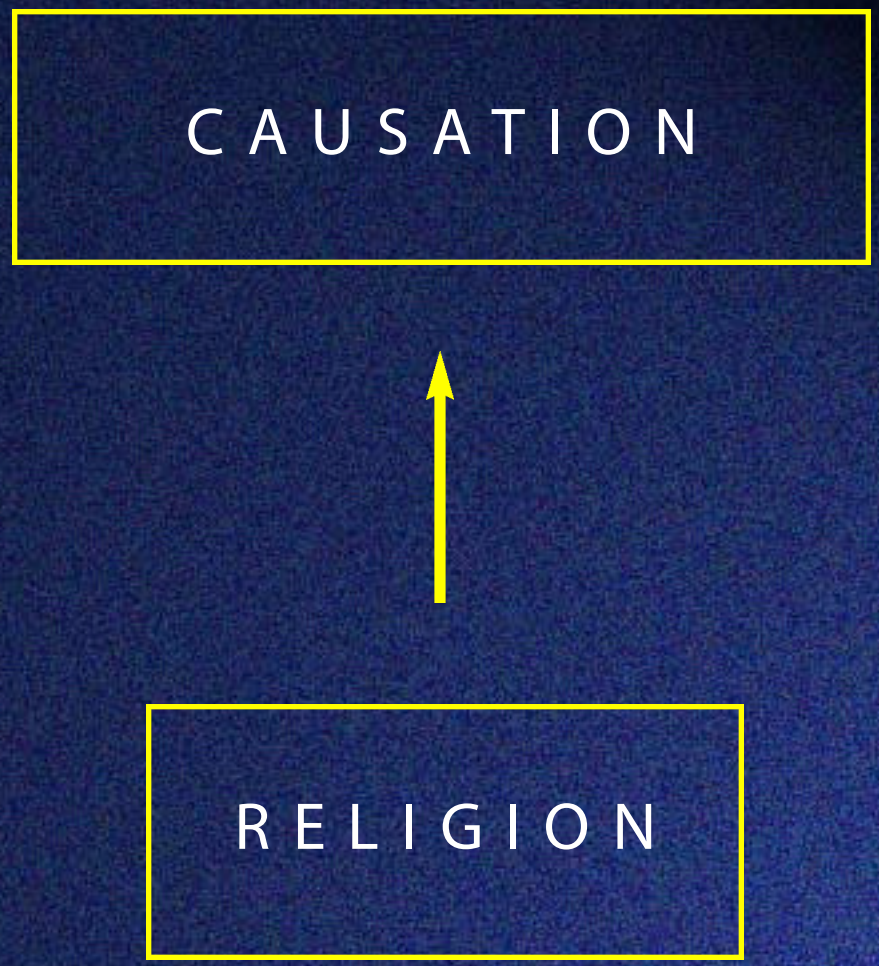
man,

woman,

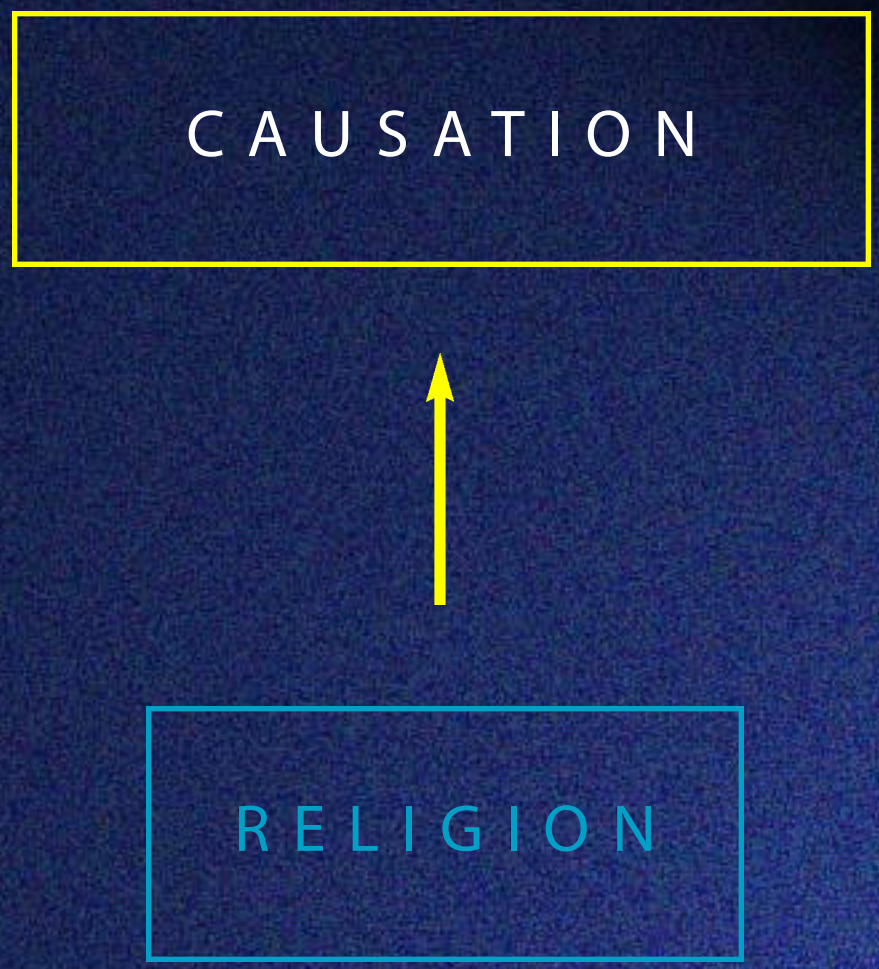
the firmament itself

having been ‘created’,

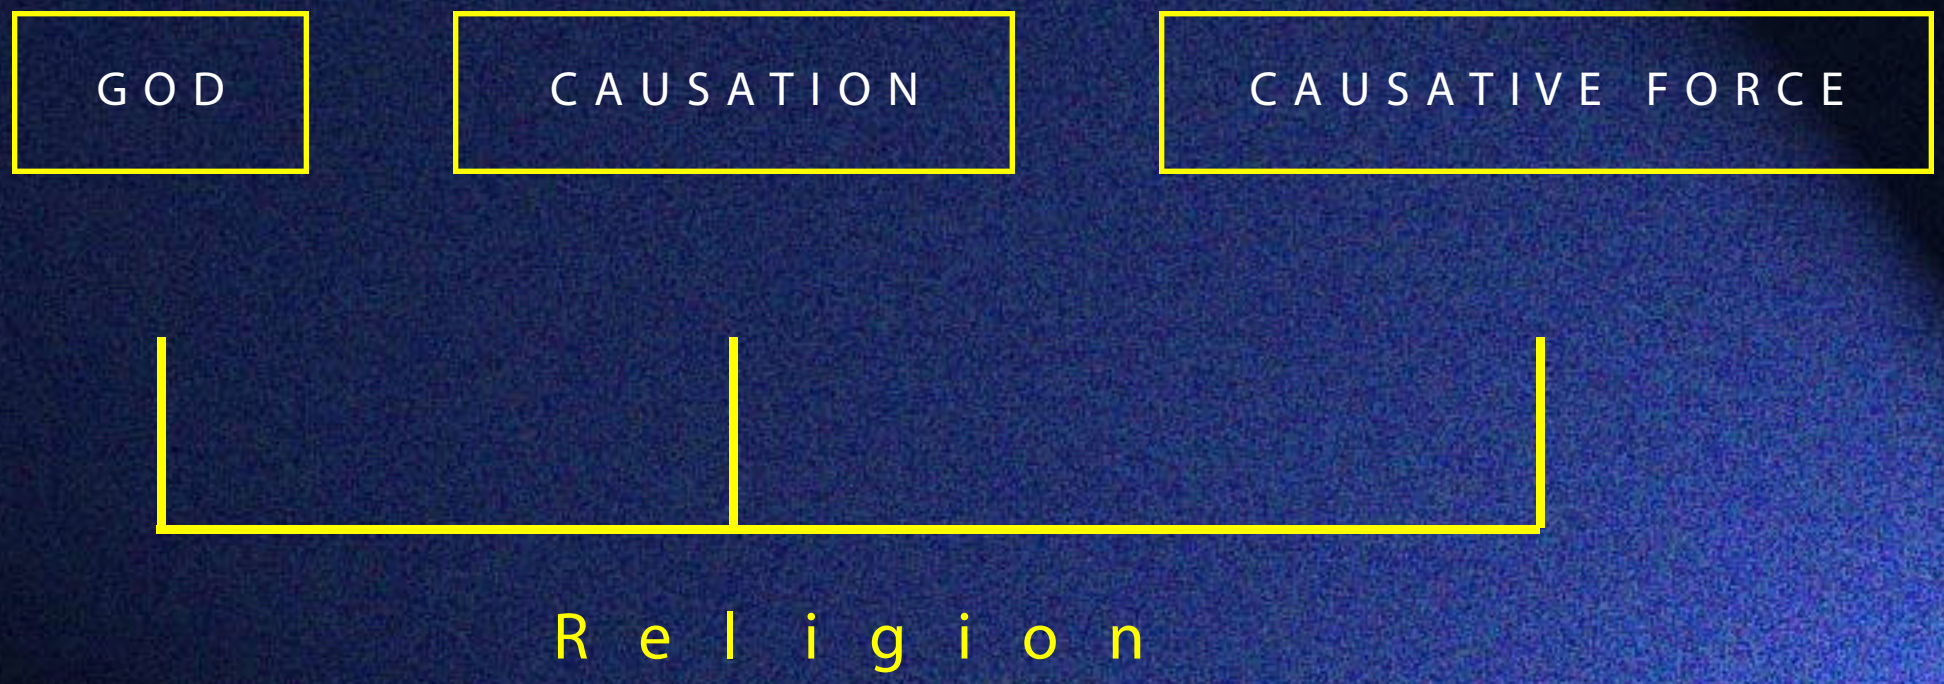
having been initiated by a force which they proceed to name.



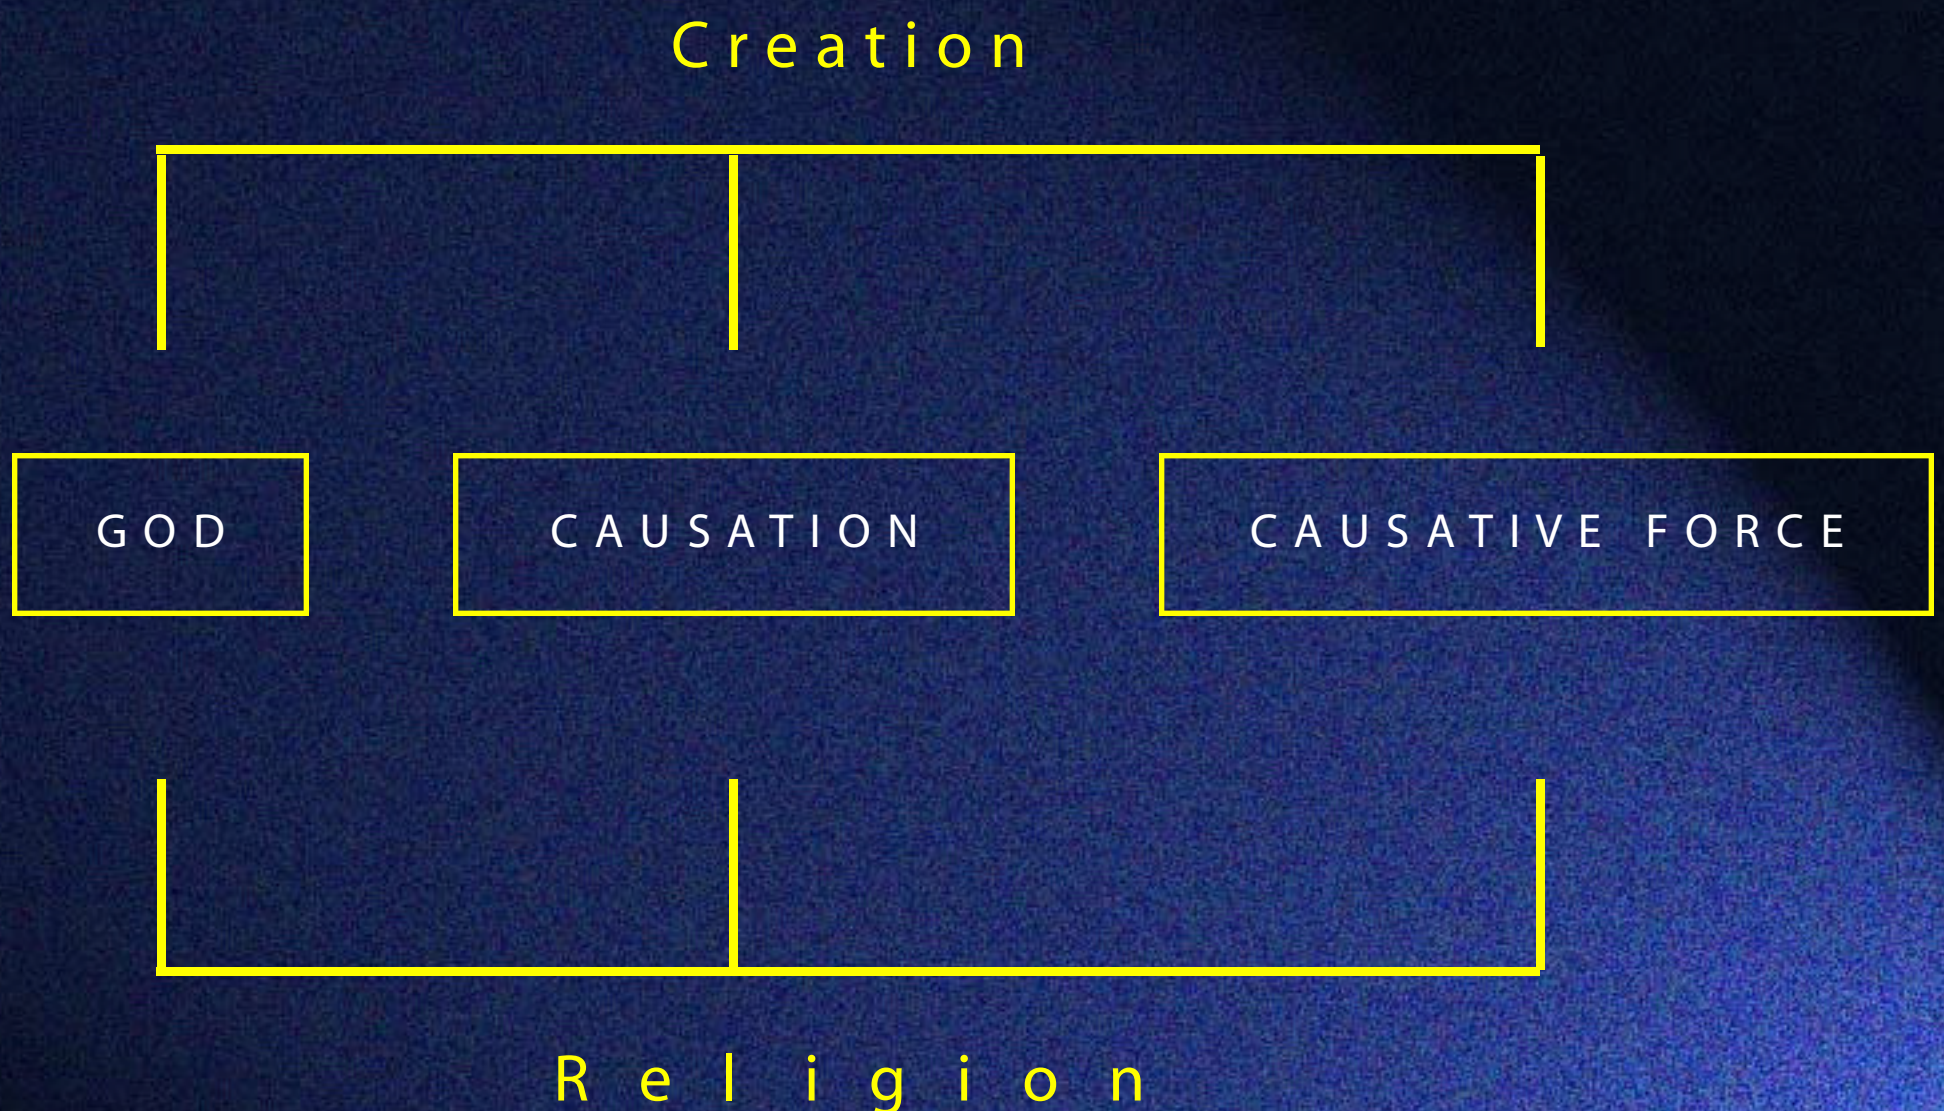
The existence of causation is a basic premise of religion.



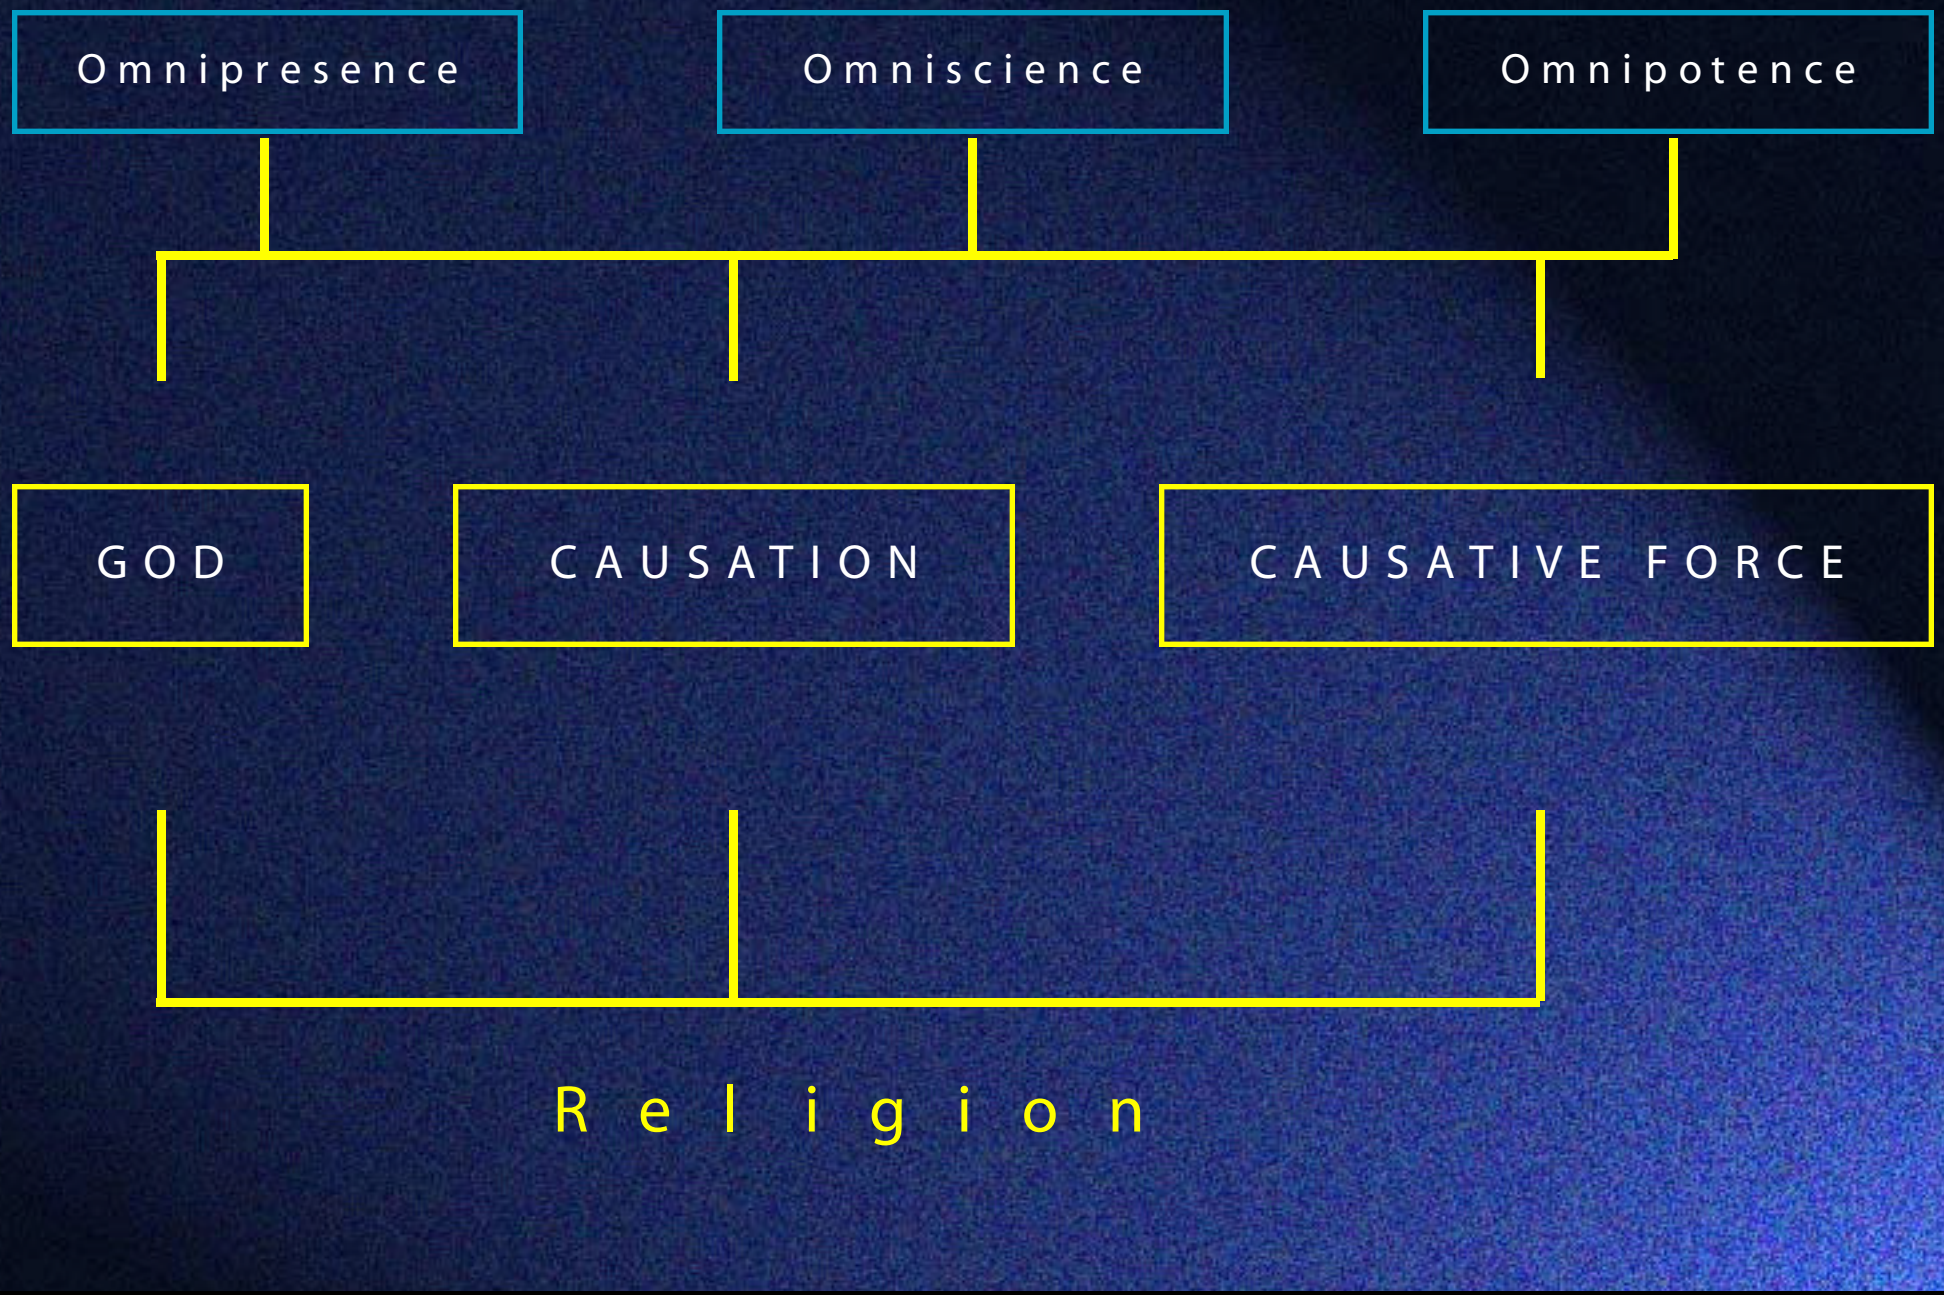
Strip away the dogma of religion and they all say basically the same thing:



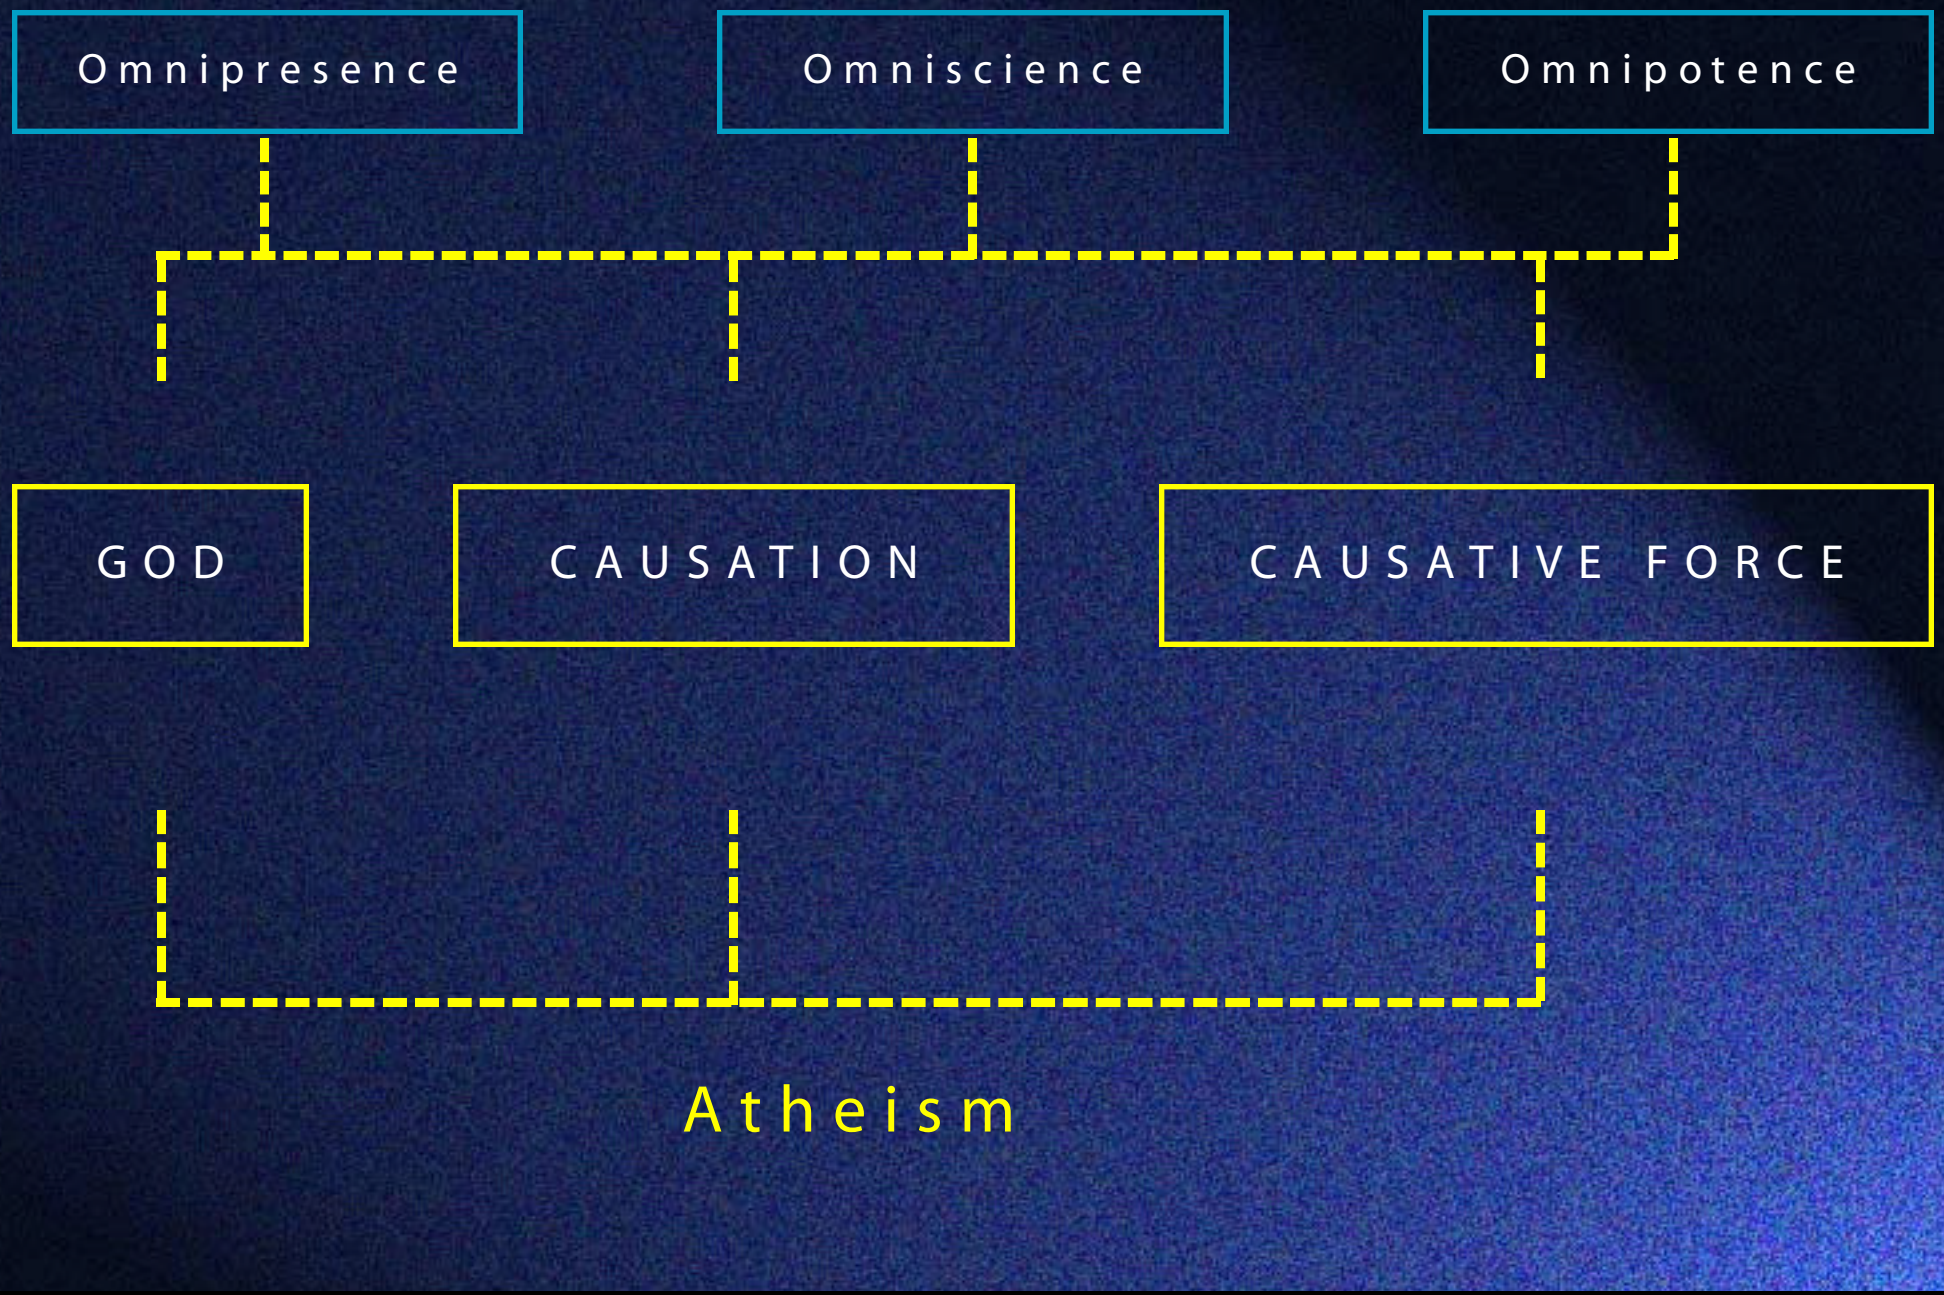
God/Causation/the Causative Force exists.



They all embrace the concept of ‘creation’.



They all embrace the concept of omnipresence, omniscience, and omnipotence.



Some would say atheism rejects this idea, but atheism simply rejects the existence of a 'supreme being', 'popular' gods, what they call 'superstitions' of religion.

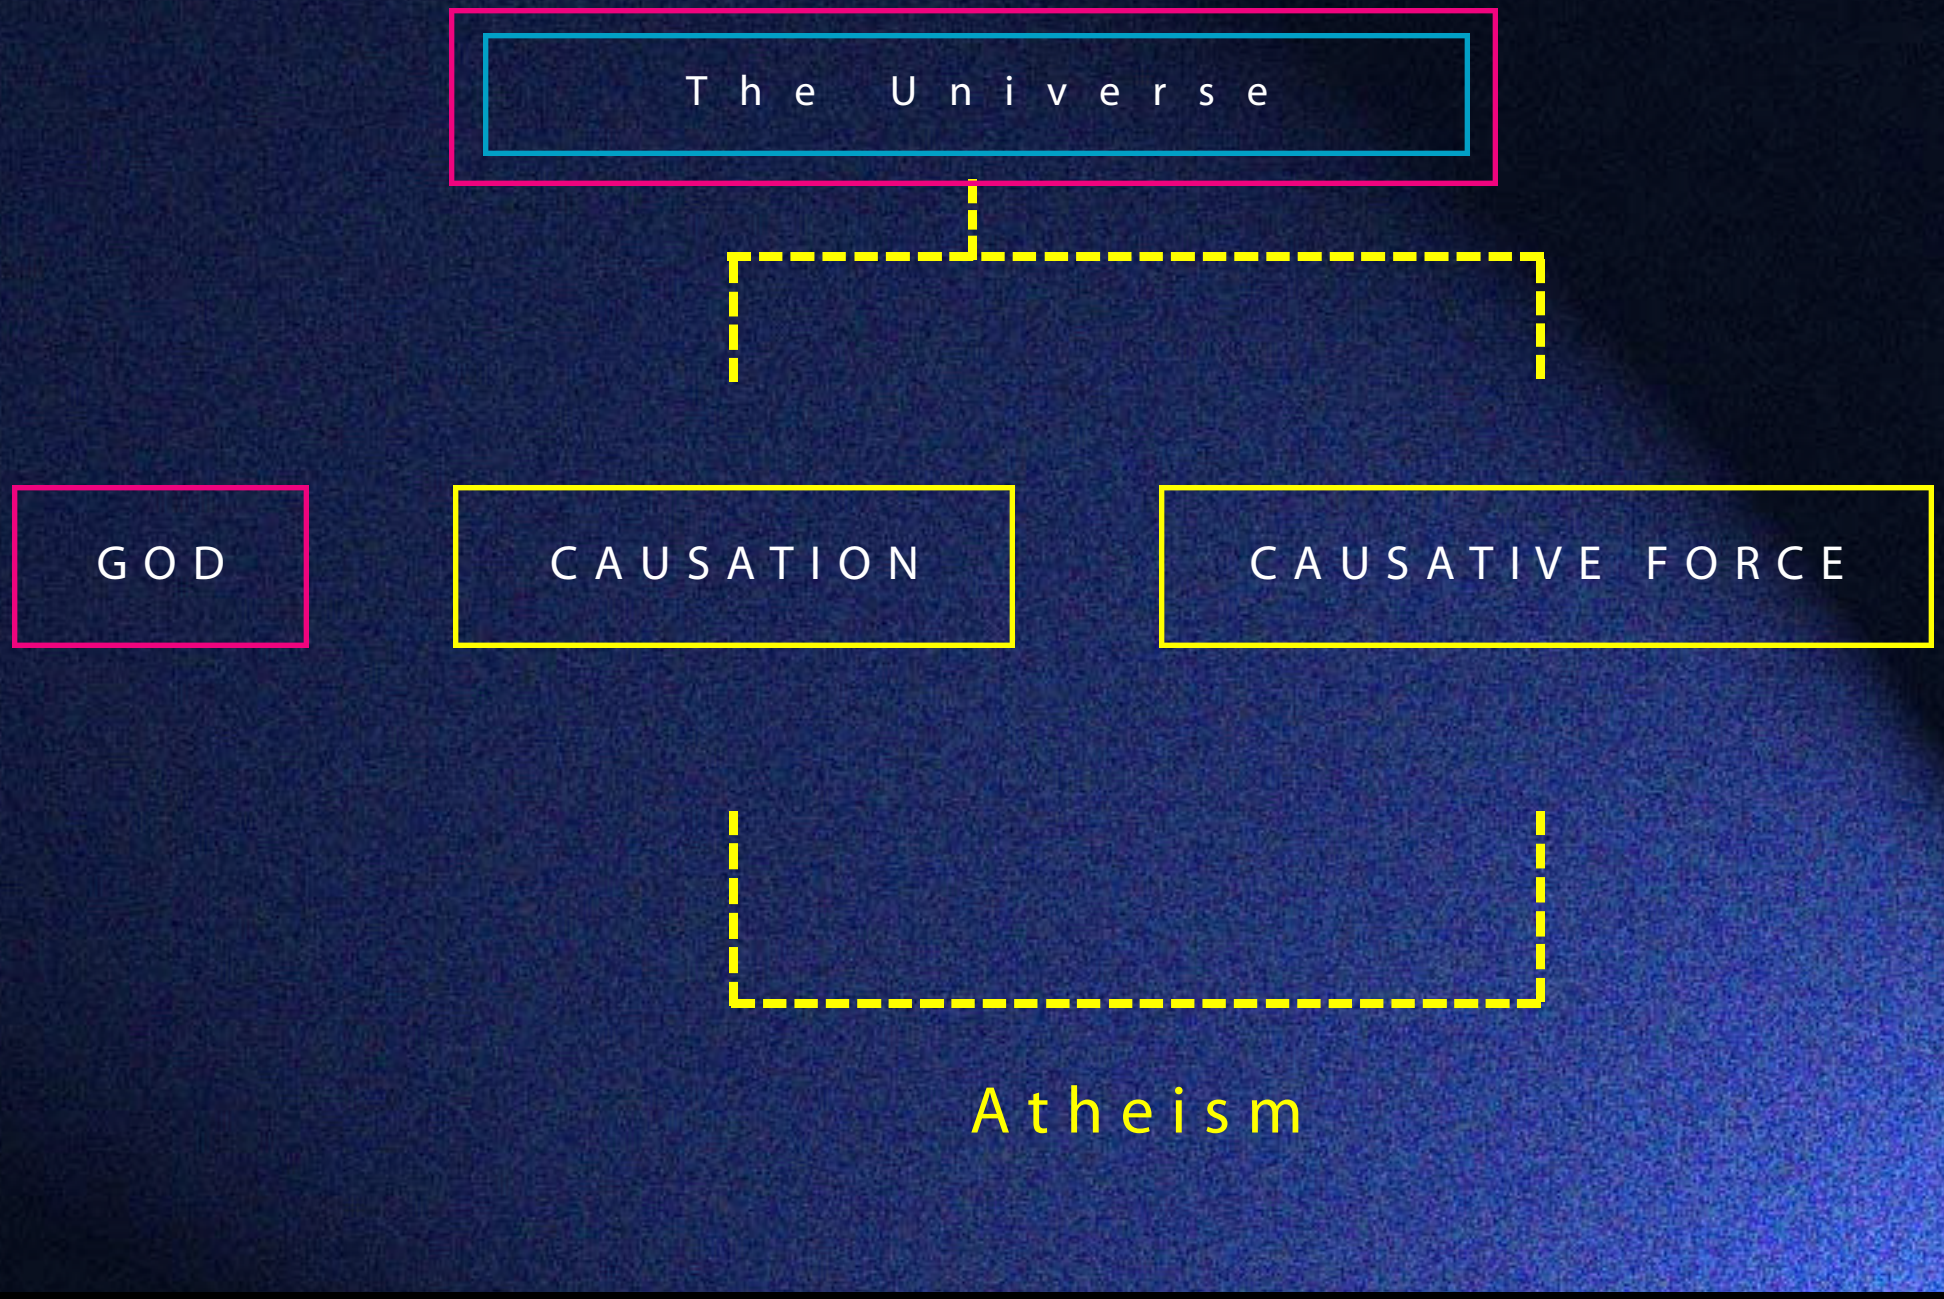
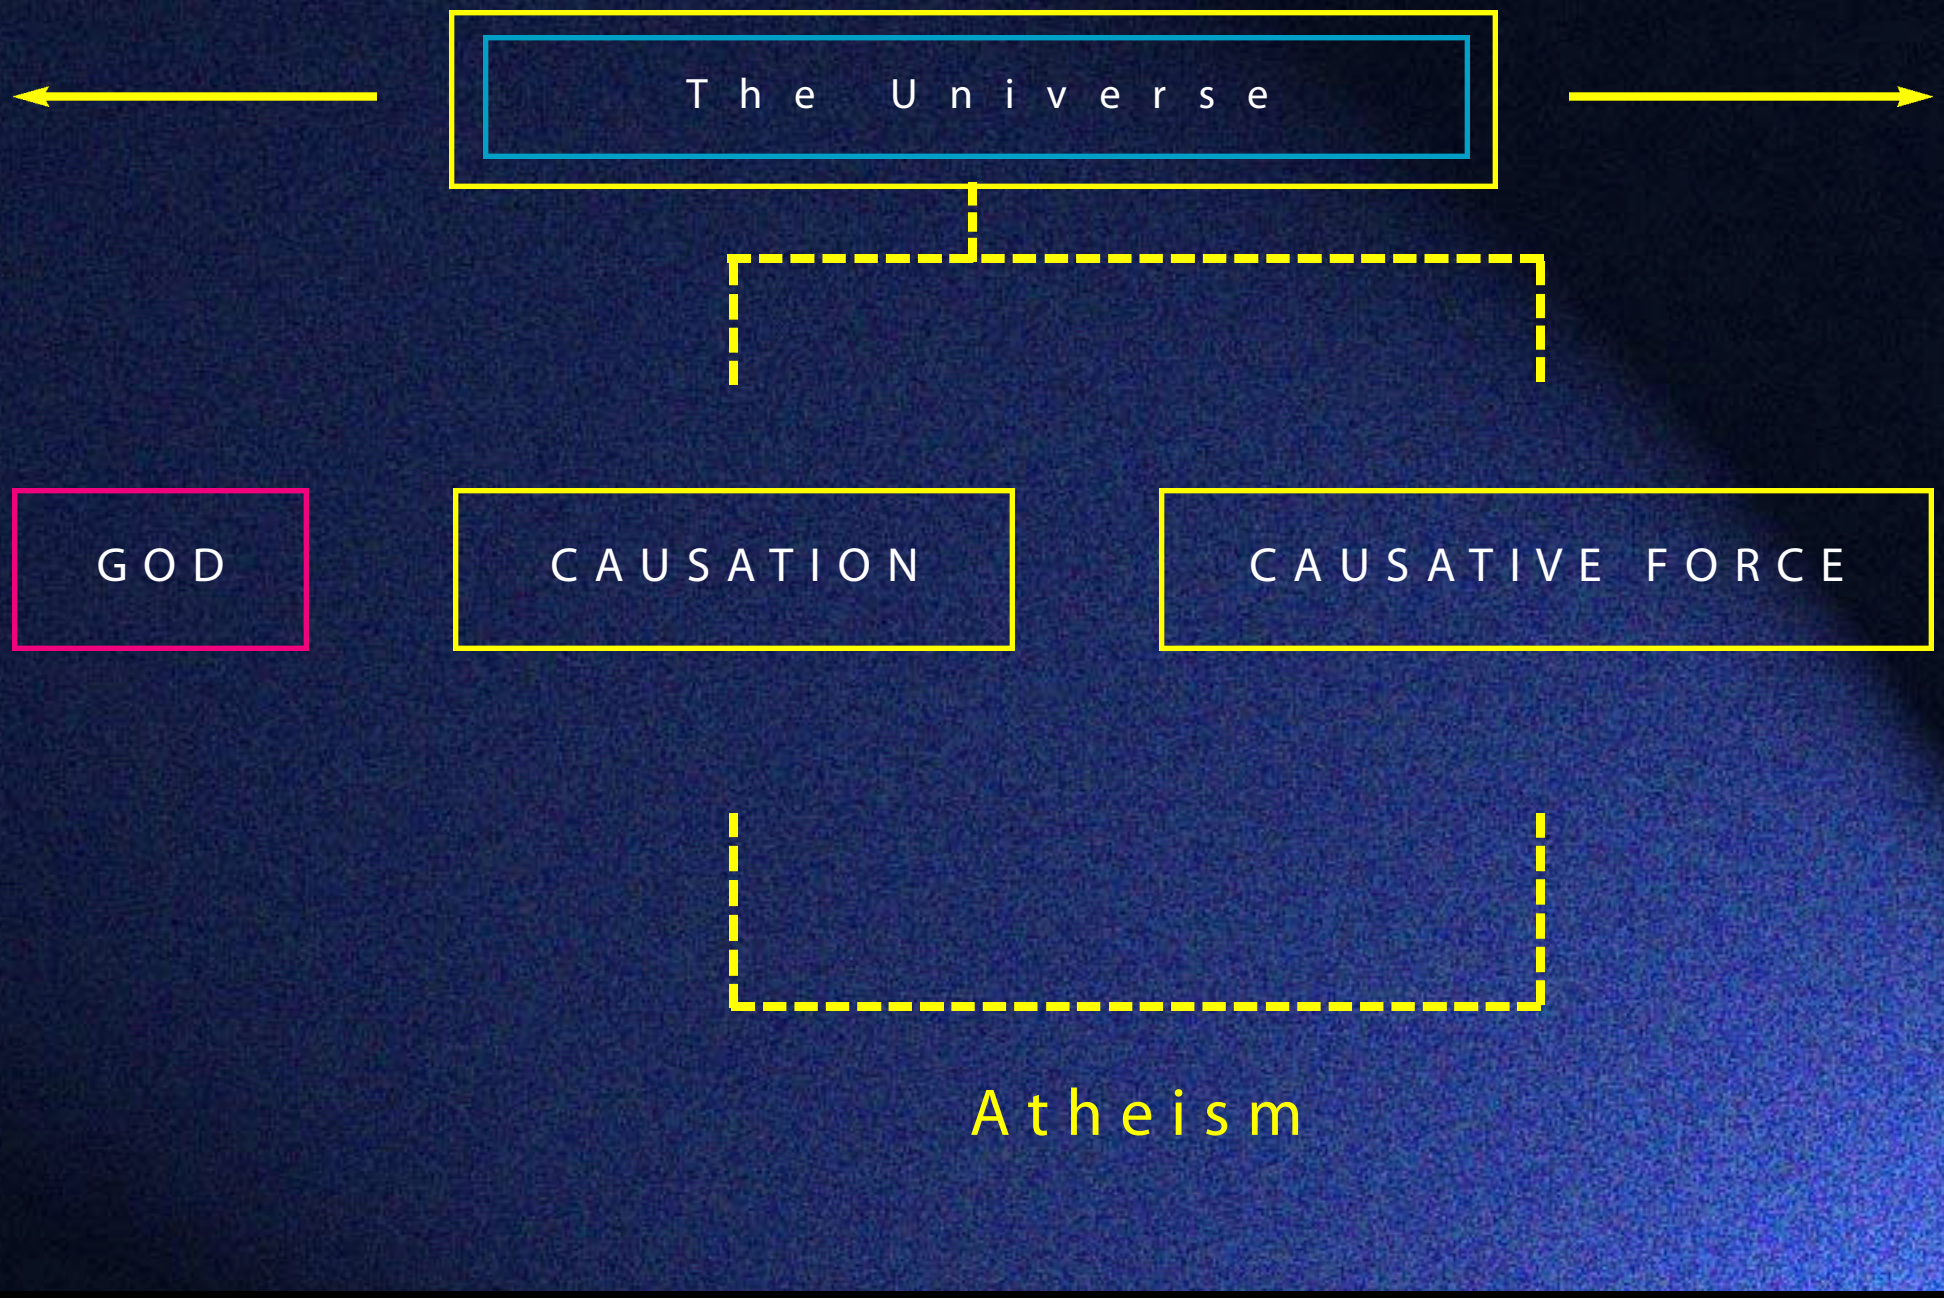
Atheism does not necessarily reject the concept of a 'beginning' to the Universe as such.



Atheism does not necessarily reject the concept of the Universe being immersed within 'something',



nor does Atheism necessarily reject there being an outside to the Universe.

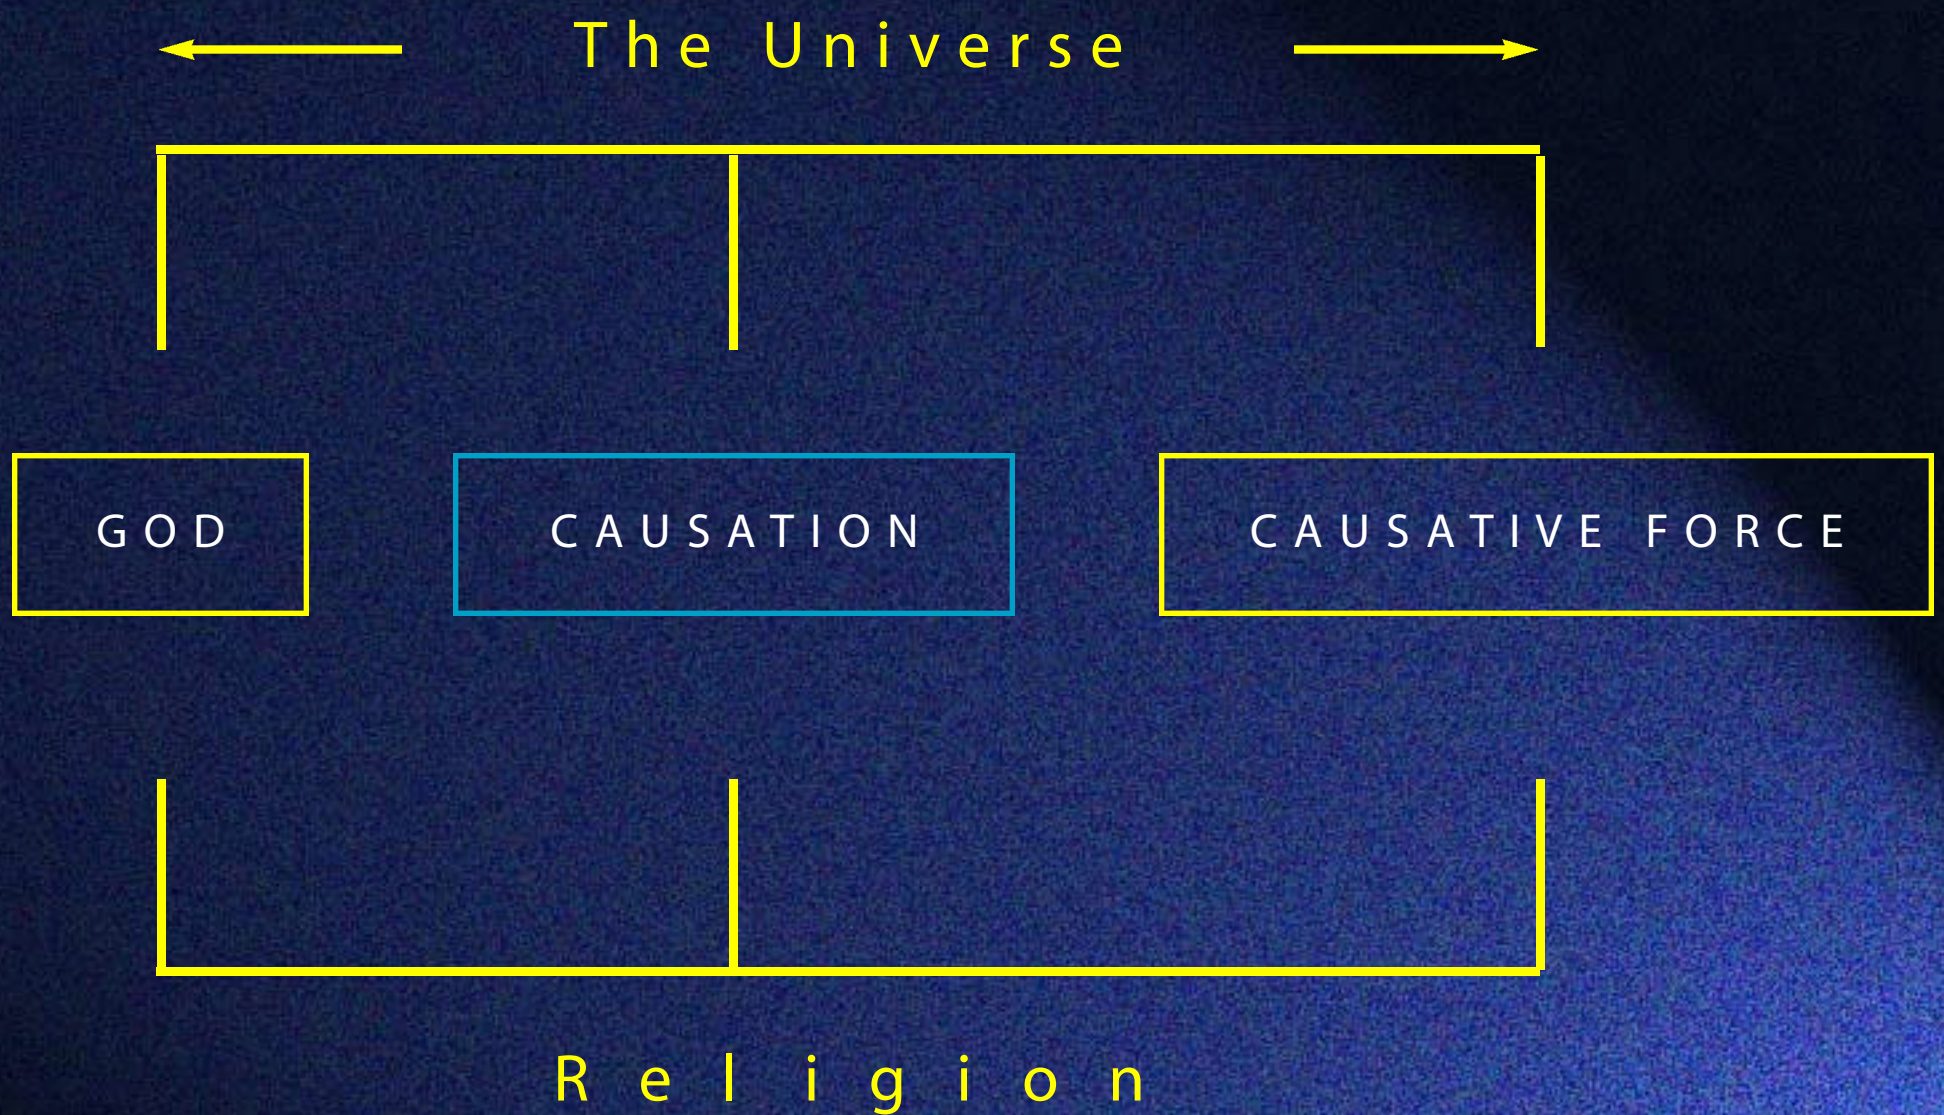
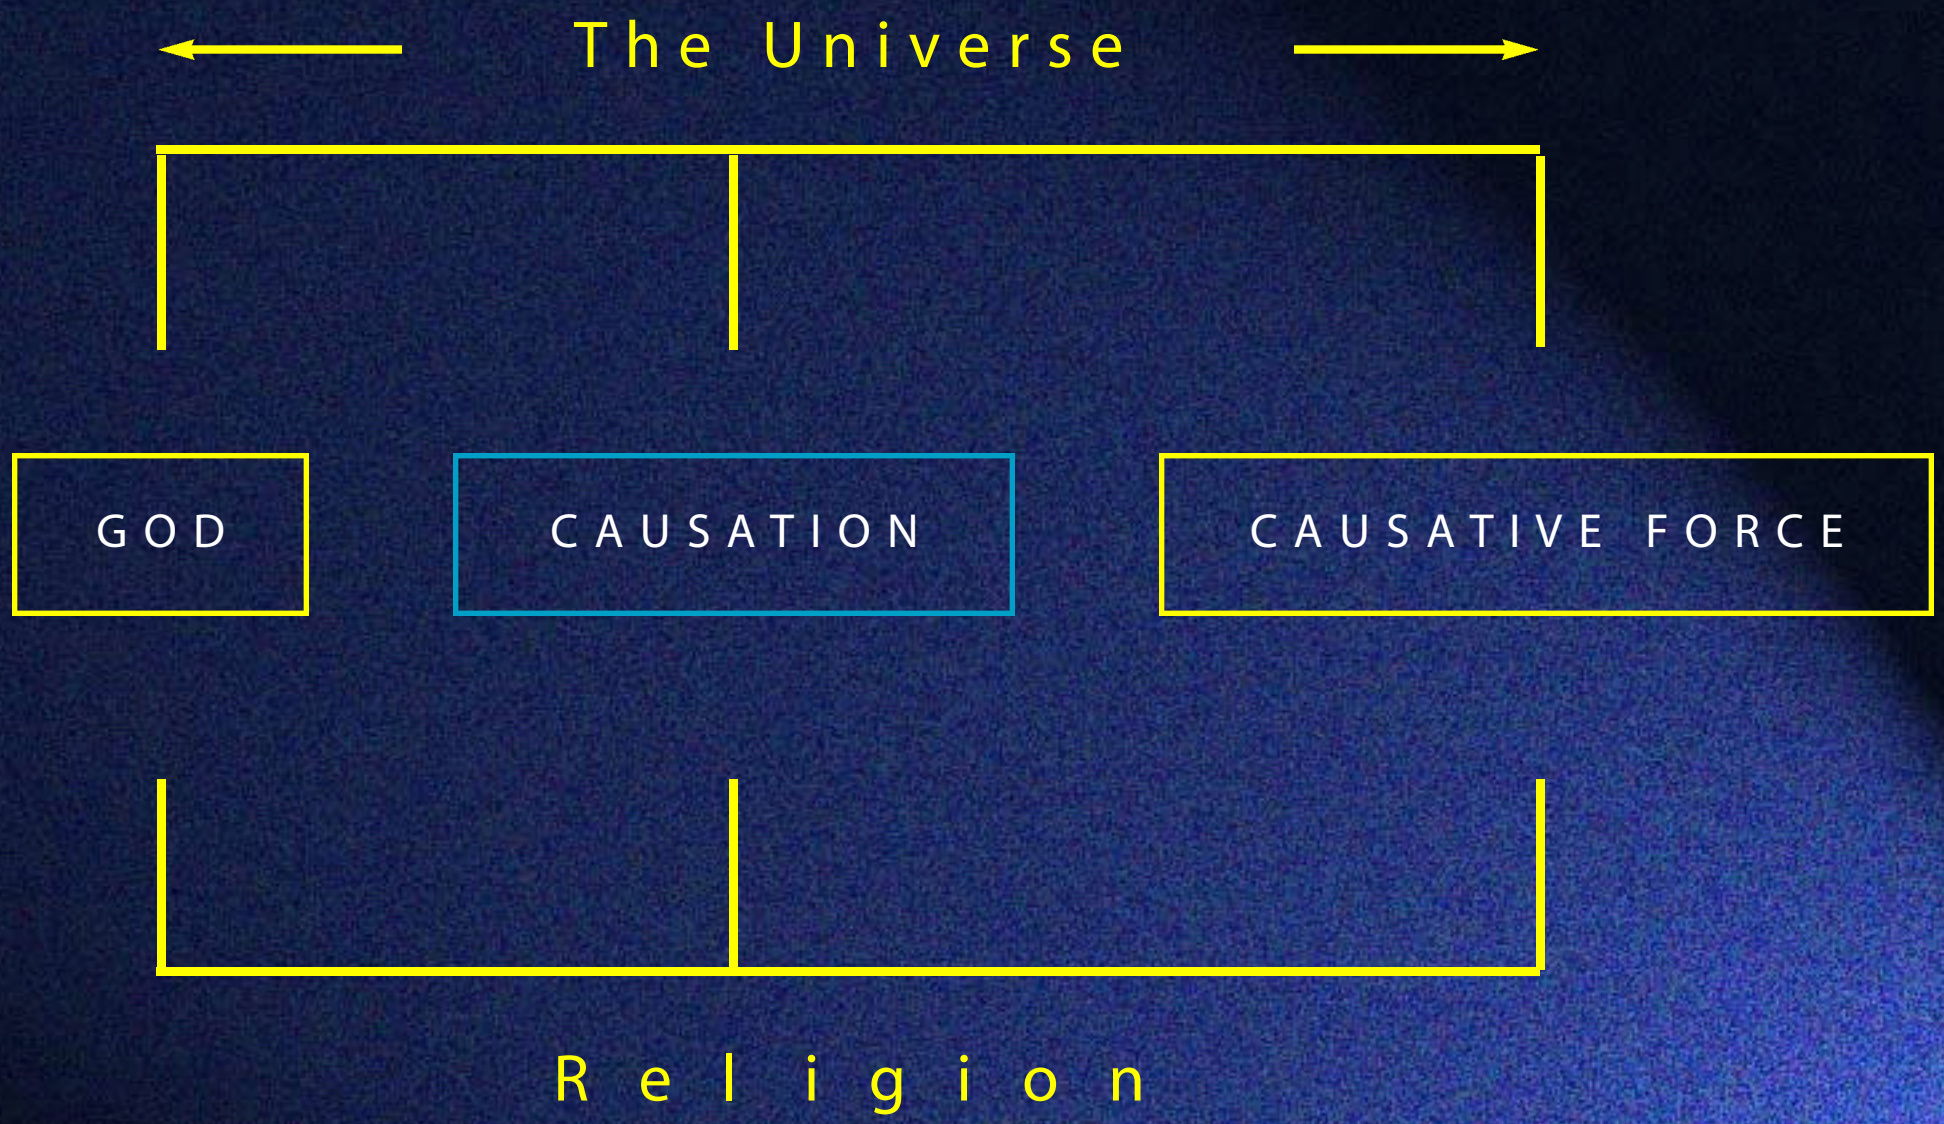
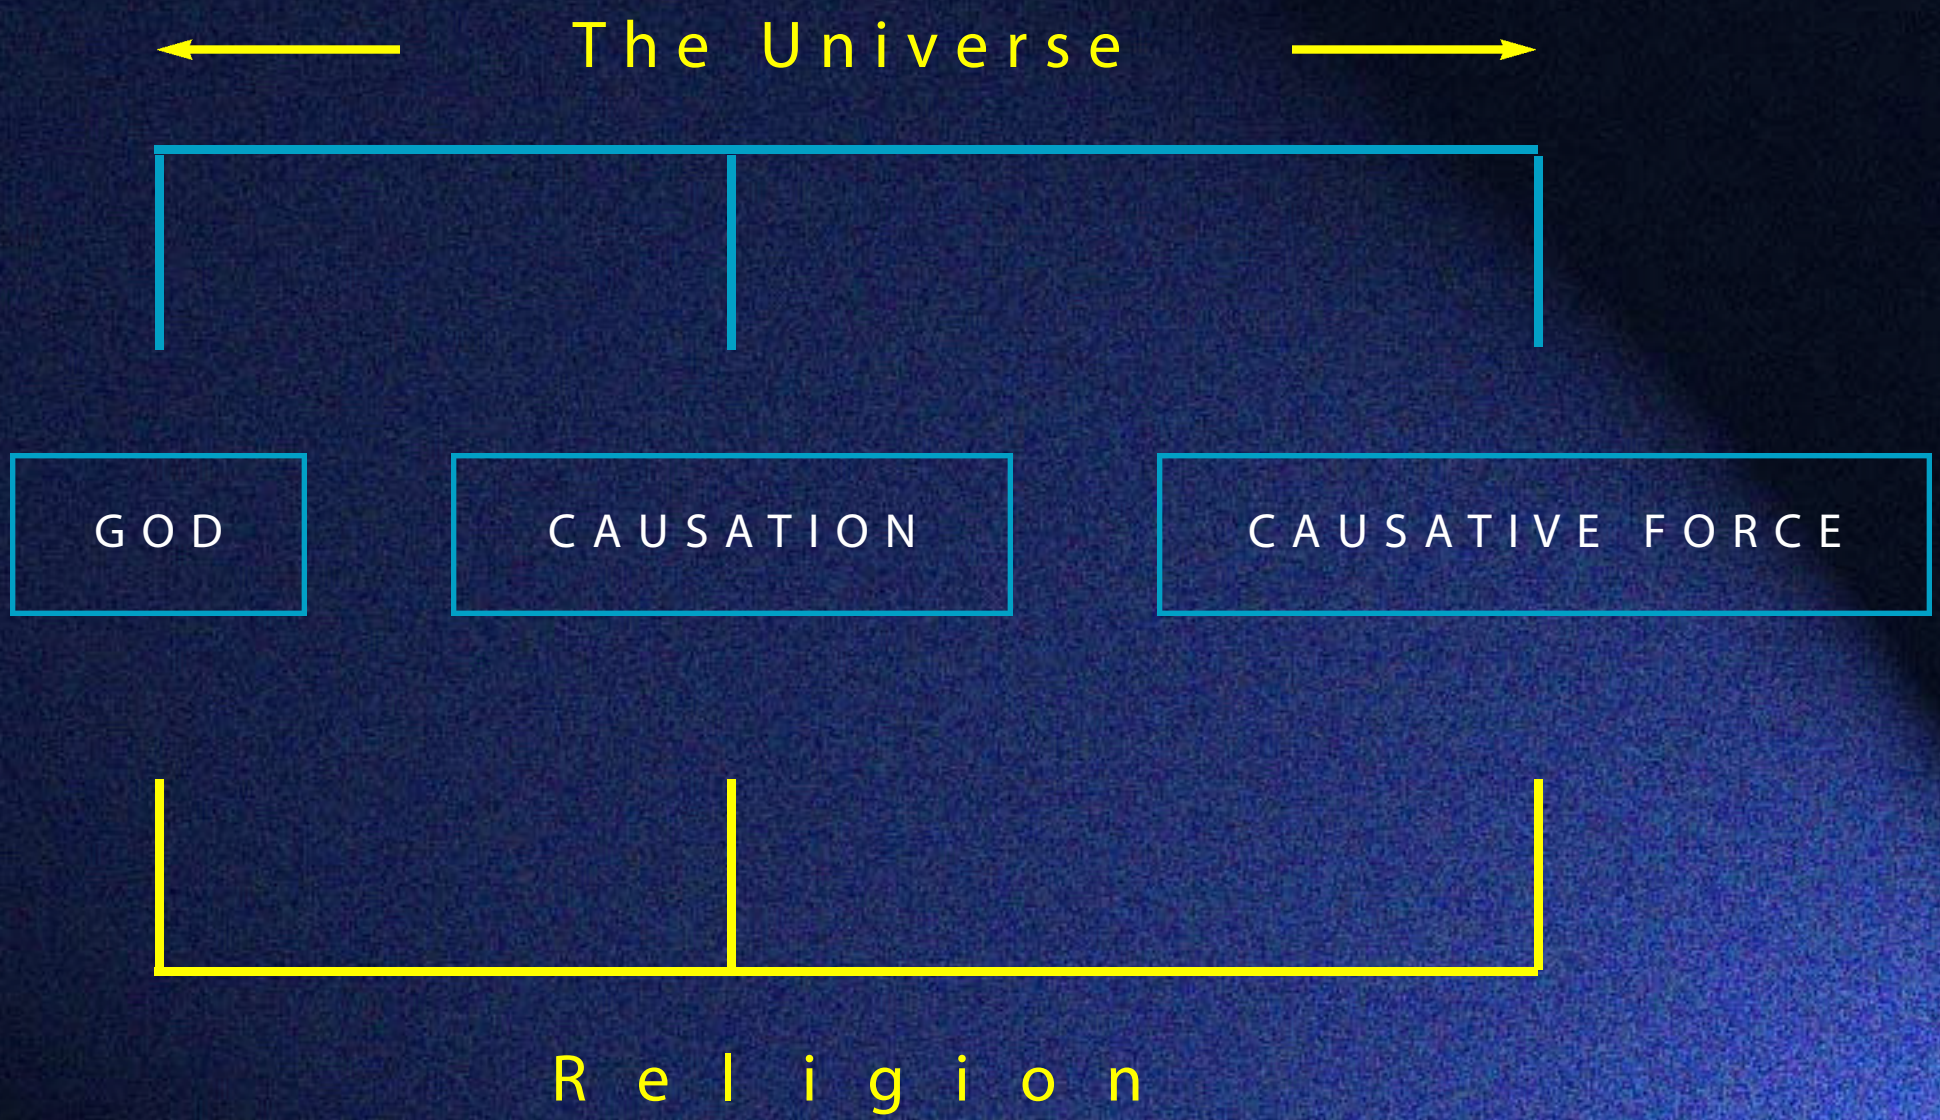
The point is: religion leads the way in developing the perception of their existing an outside to our Universe.



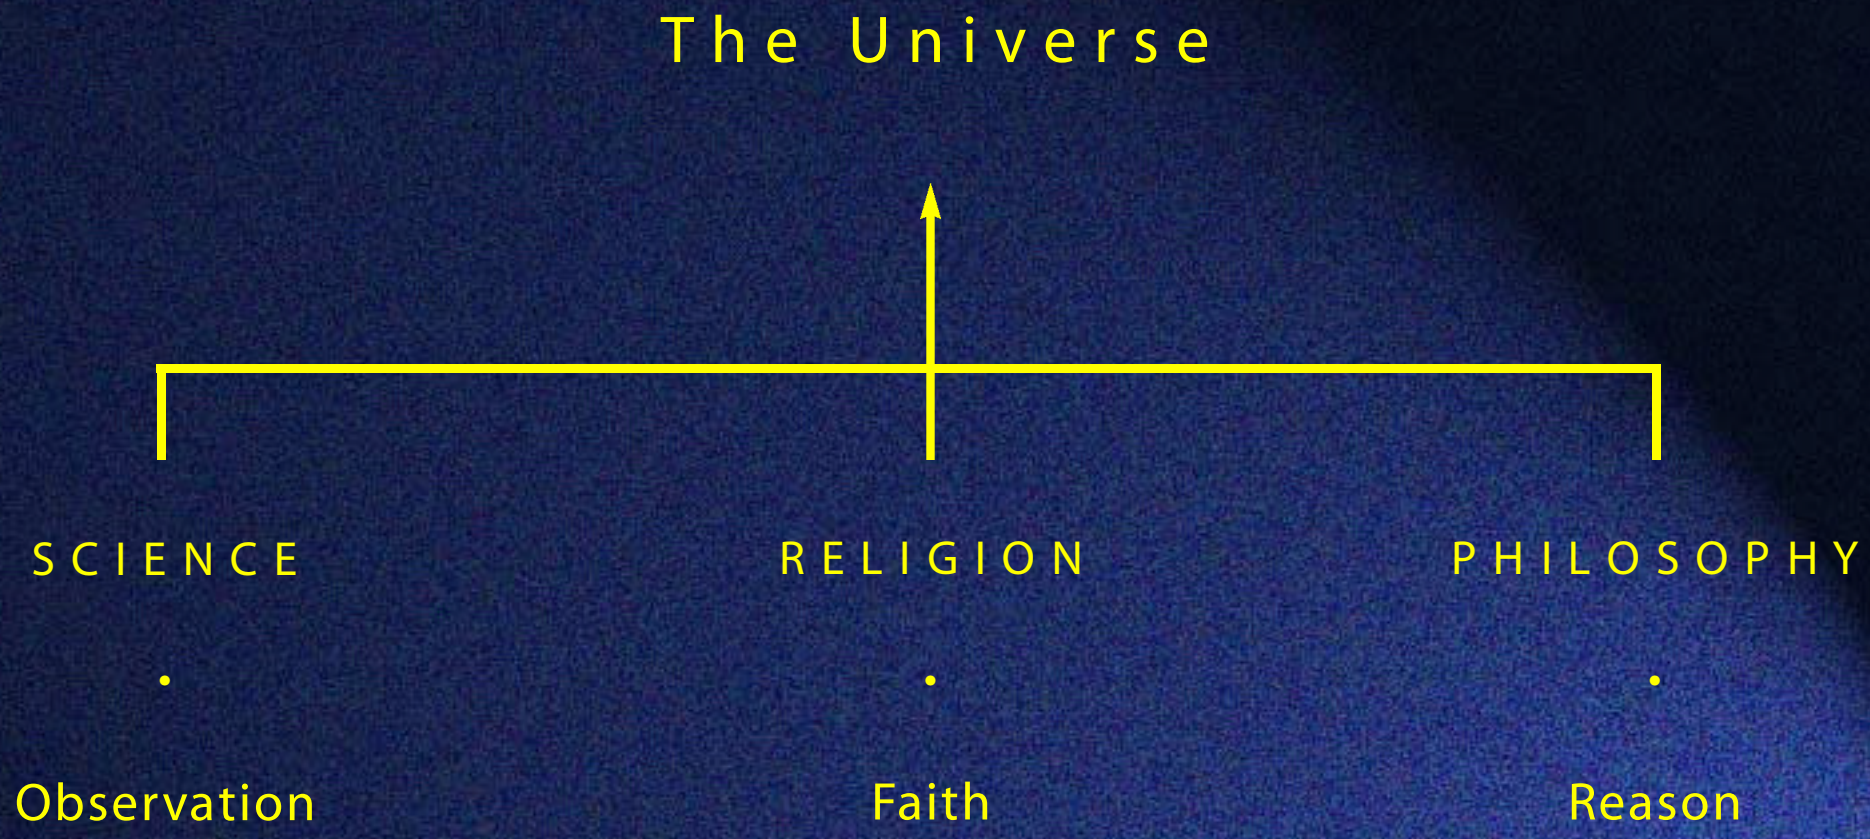
Religions lead the way in developing the perception of there existing a causation for the initiation of our Universe.



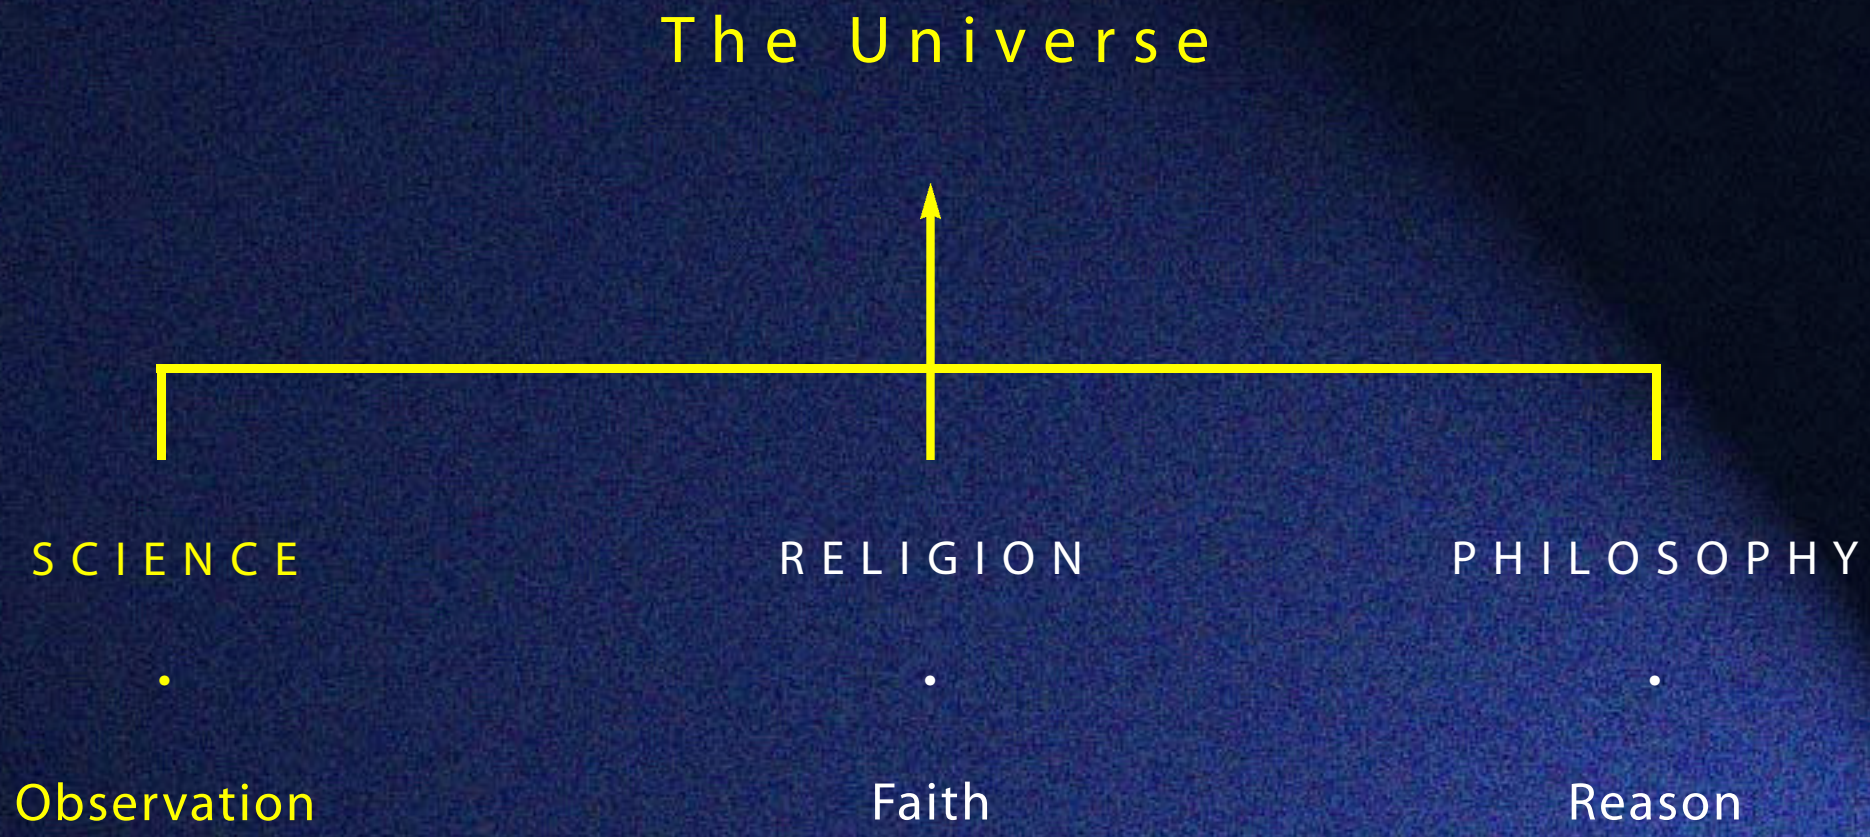
The concept of causation is a basic premise of religion. The vast majority of religions share a common belief:



God, a Causative Force, created the Universe.



Causation is supported by both philosophy and science:
one relying upon reason, the other relying upon observation.



The concept of Causation to our Universe existing, a creative force existing, is supported by science and its theories such as: our Universe originating from an explosion, our Universe originating through the process of a

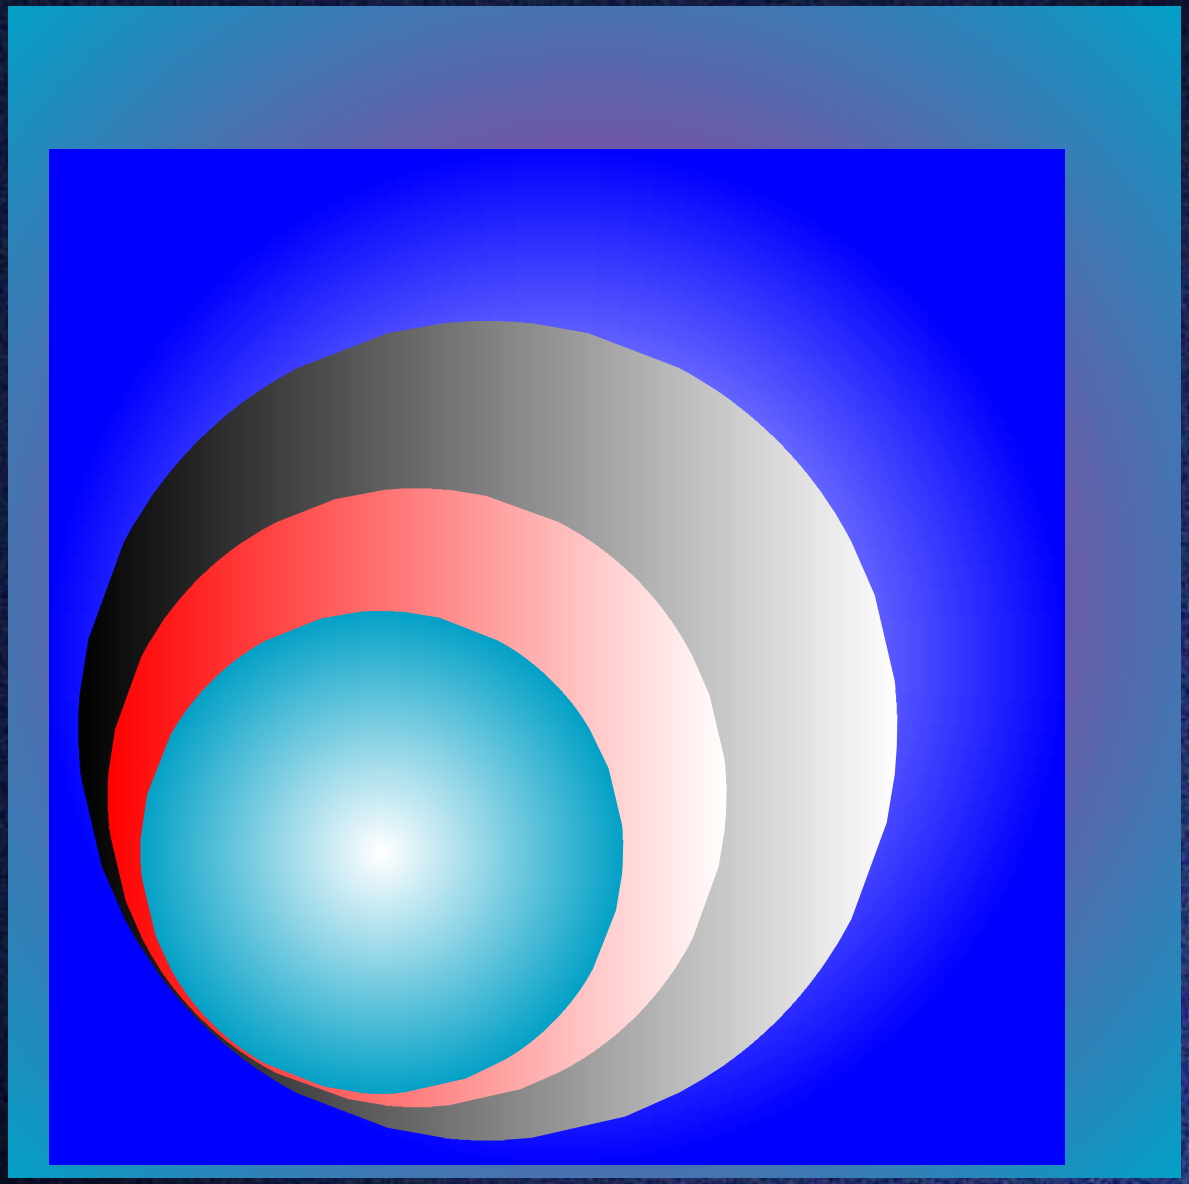
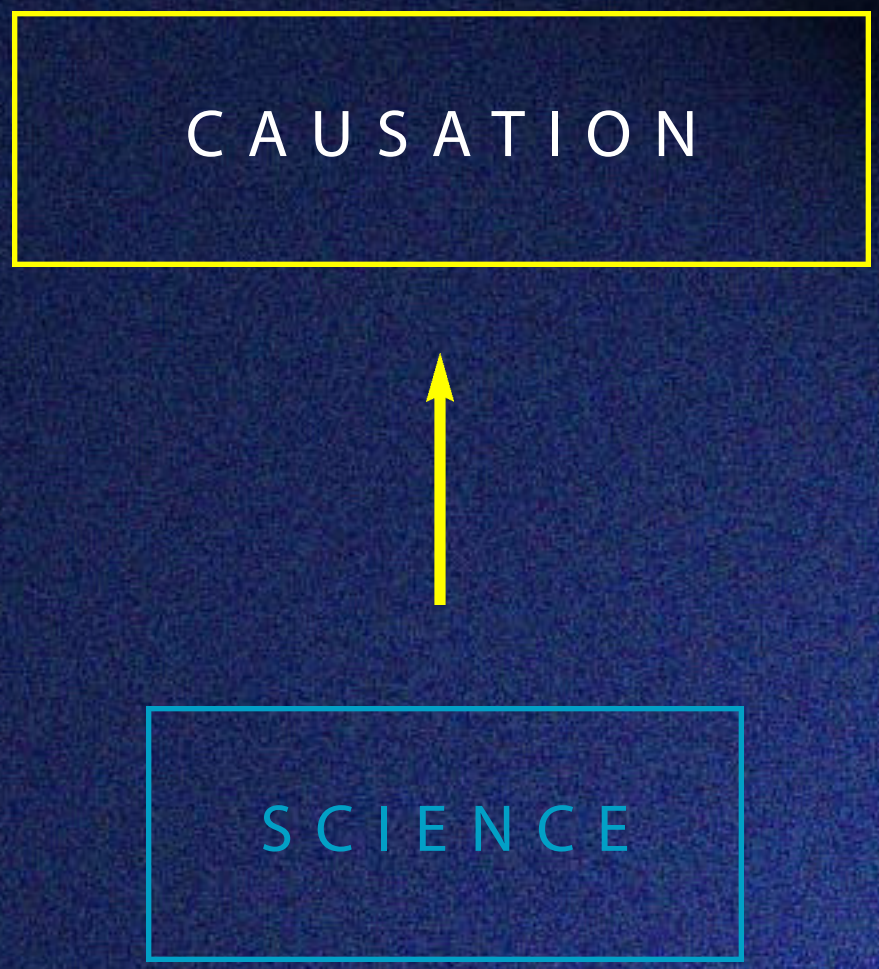
'bulging off' from the original Universe,



our Universe existing as one of many levels of potential vacuums.

Whatever the case, the basics are the same.



Each scientific theory goes back to the concept of an origination, a beginning,

which implies something existed before
the origination occurred.

We, as individuals and as a species, find it difficult to disregard the implications with which ‘time’ persistently confronts us.

Science, observation, persistently suggests the Universe had a beginning and as such ‘something’, we will call it ‘causation’, exists. Causation existing is further supported by philosophy.

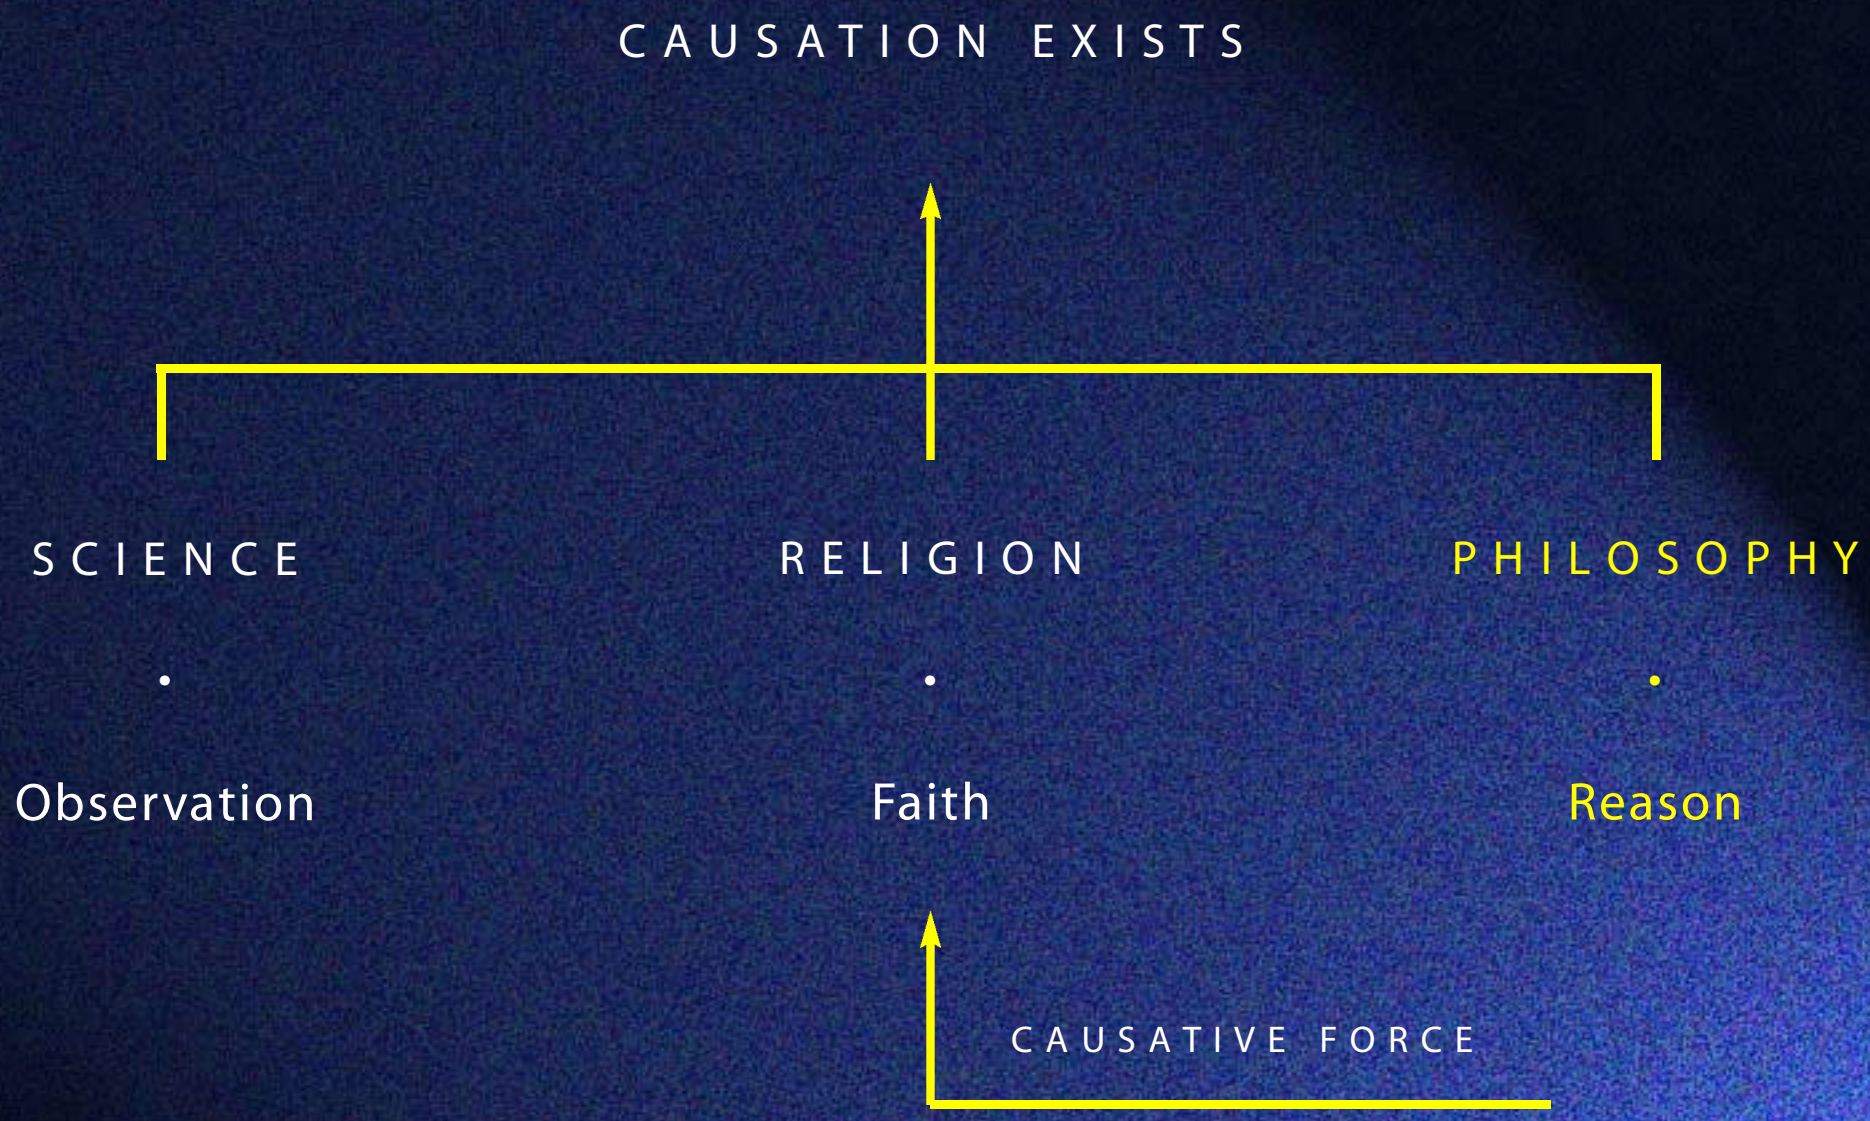
•	•	•
Observation	Faith	Reason

‘causation existing’ is a reasonable assumption.



The concept of the Universe being 'created' by a causative force is so reasonable that to speculate otherwise leaves one at a complete loss.

•	•	•
Observation	Faith	Reason

Without the concept of causation existing, arguments, debate, speculation, comes to a standstill regarding any attempt

"WHERE ?"

to reason out answers for questions regarding:

Where?

"WHERE IS THE UNIVERSE ?"

"WHERE ARE WE ?"

•	•	•
Observation	Faith	Reason

Where is the Universe? Where are we?

"WHAT ?"

•	•	•

What?

"WHAT IS THE UNIVERSE ?"

•	•	•
Observation	Faith	Reason

What is the Universe?

"WHAT ARE WE ?"

•	•	•
Observation	Faith	Reason

What are we?

"WHY ?"

•	•	•
Observation	Faith	Reason

and Why?

"WHY DOES THE UNIVERSE EXIST?"

•	•	•
Observation	Faith	Reason

Why does the Universe exist?

"WHY DO WE EXIST?"

•	•	•
Observation	Faith	Reason

Why do we exist?

"DO WE EXIST?"

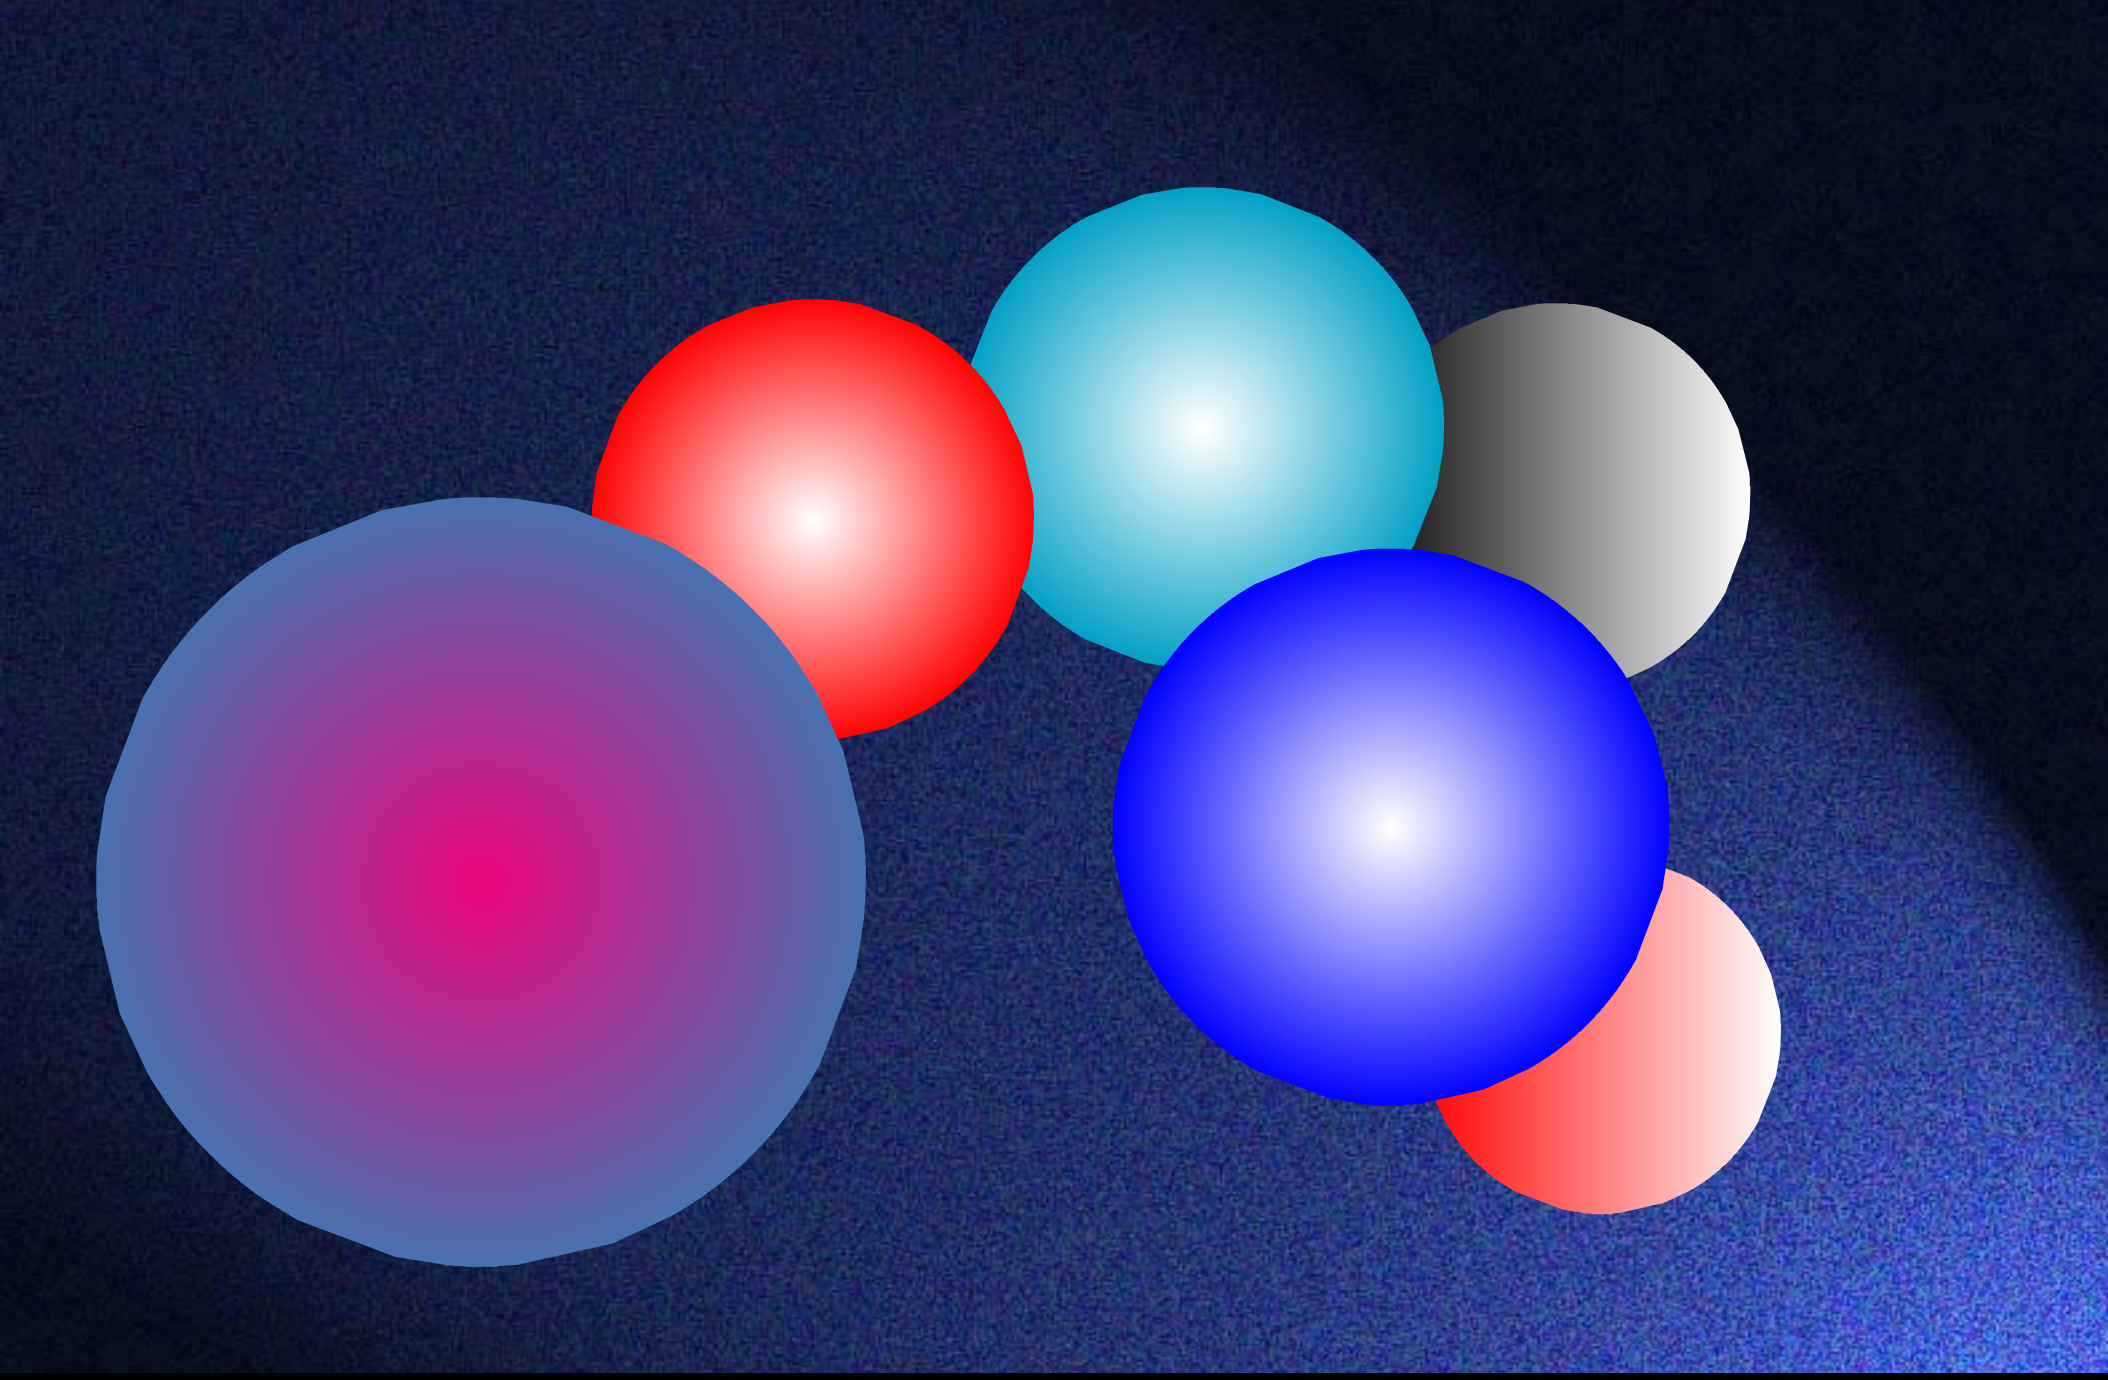
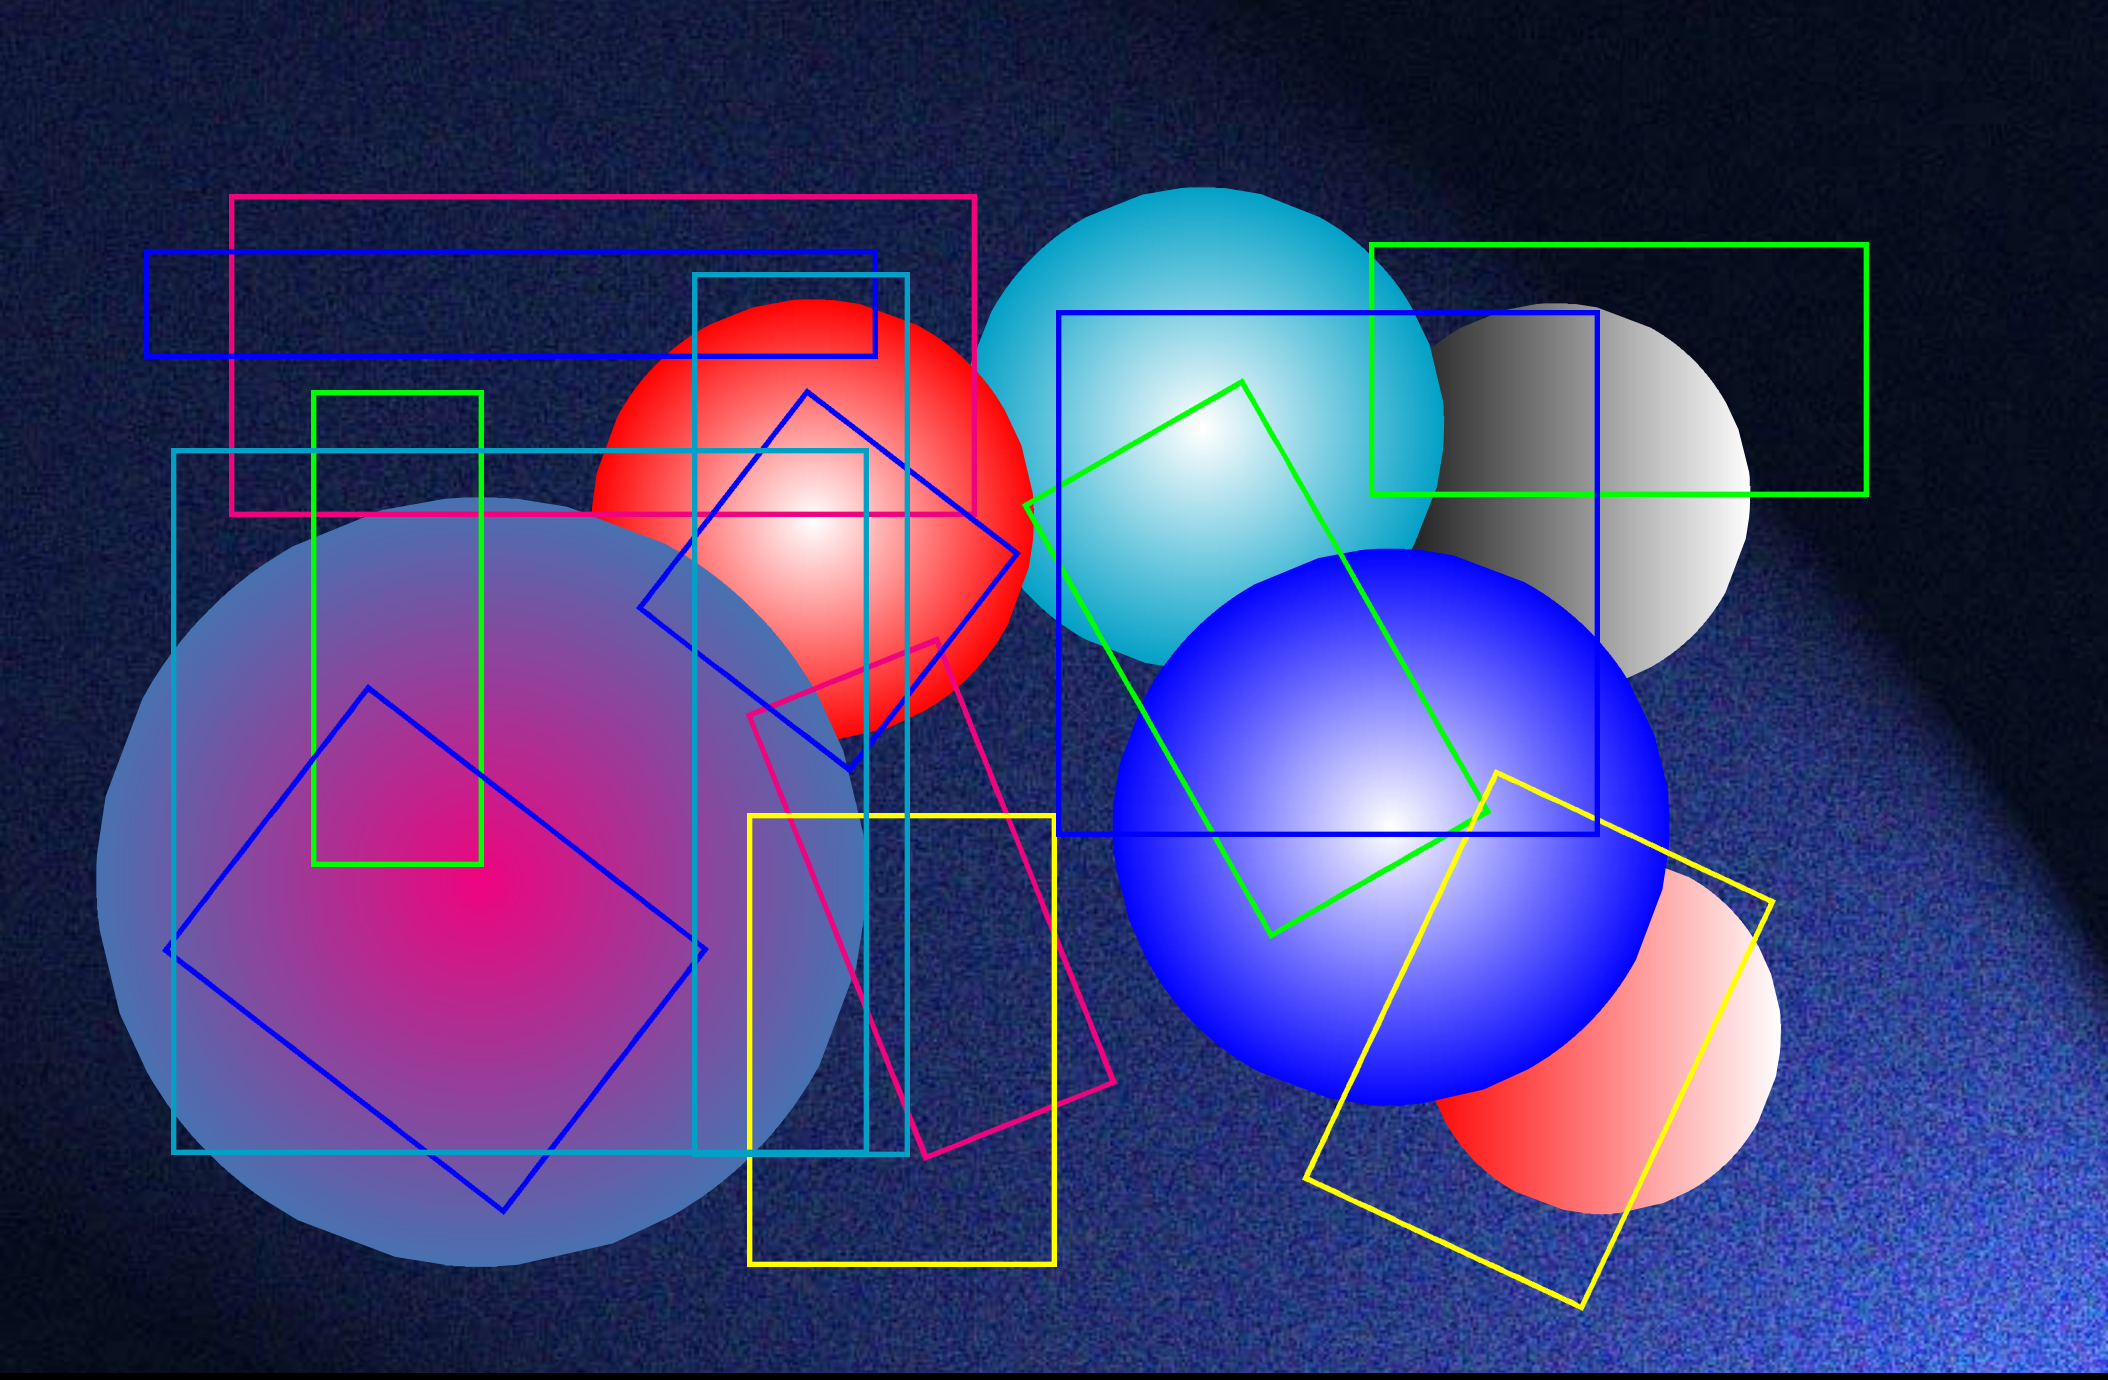
•	•	•
Observation	Faith	Reason

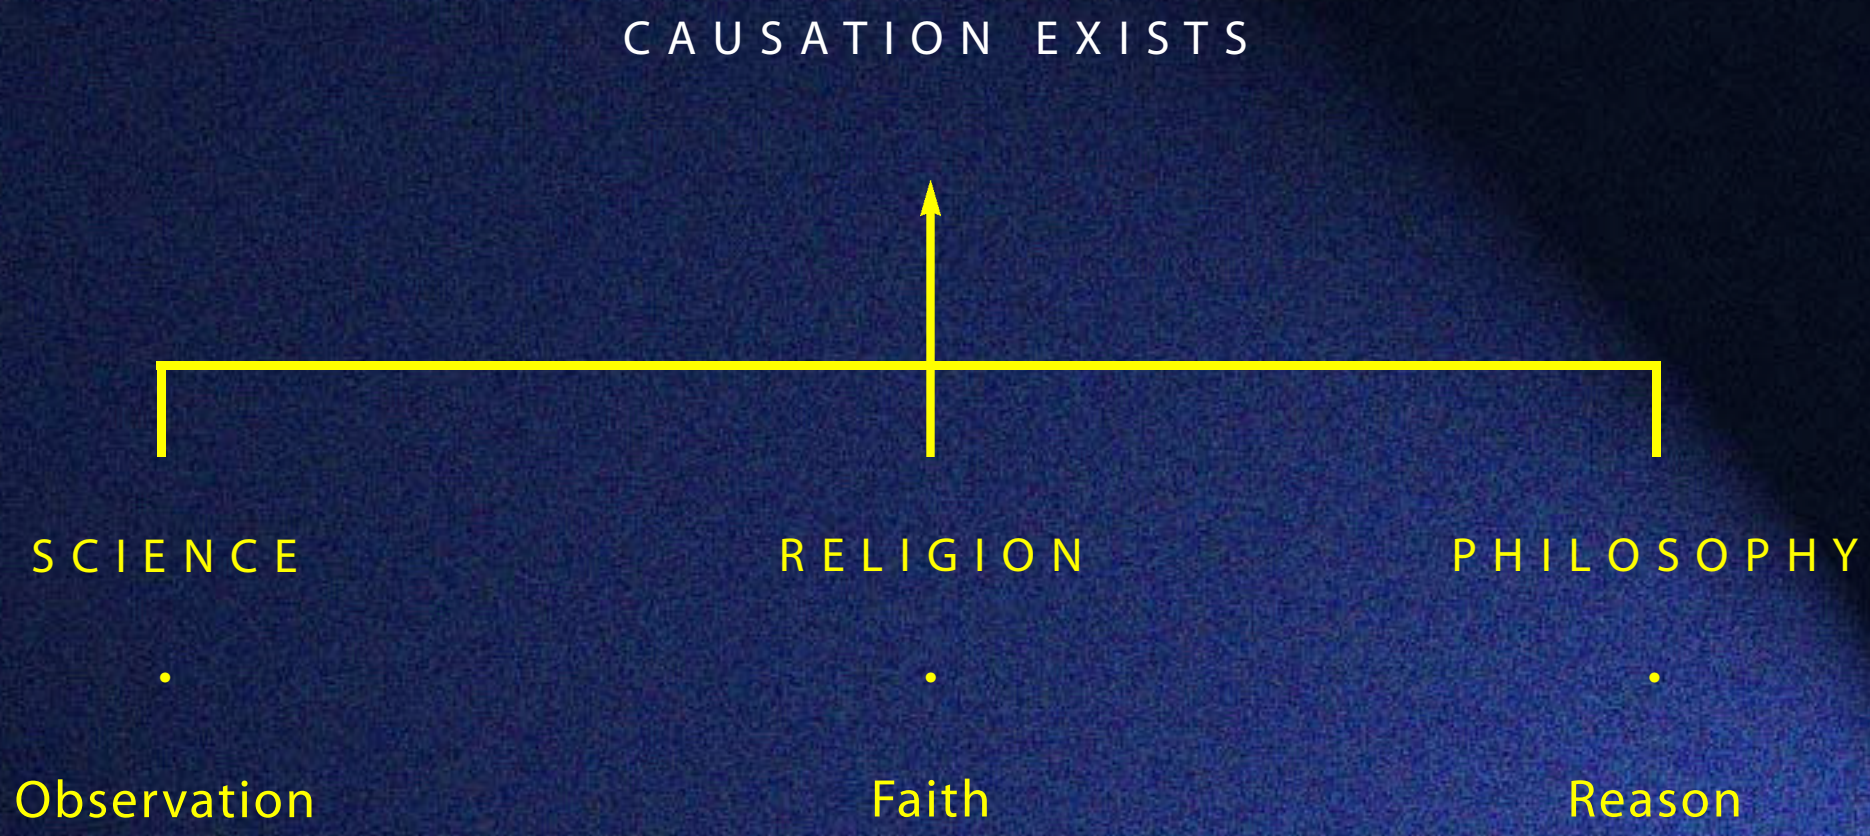
Or for that matter, do we even exist at all?



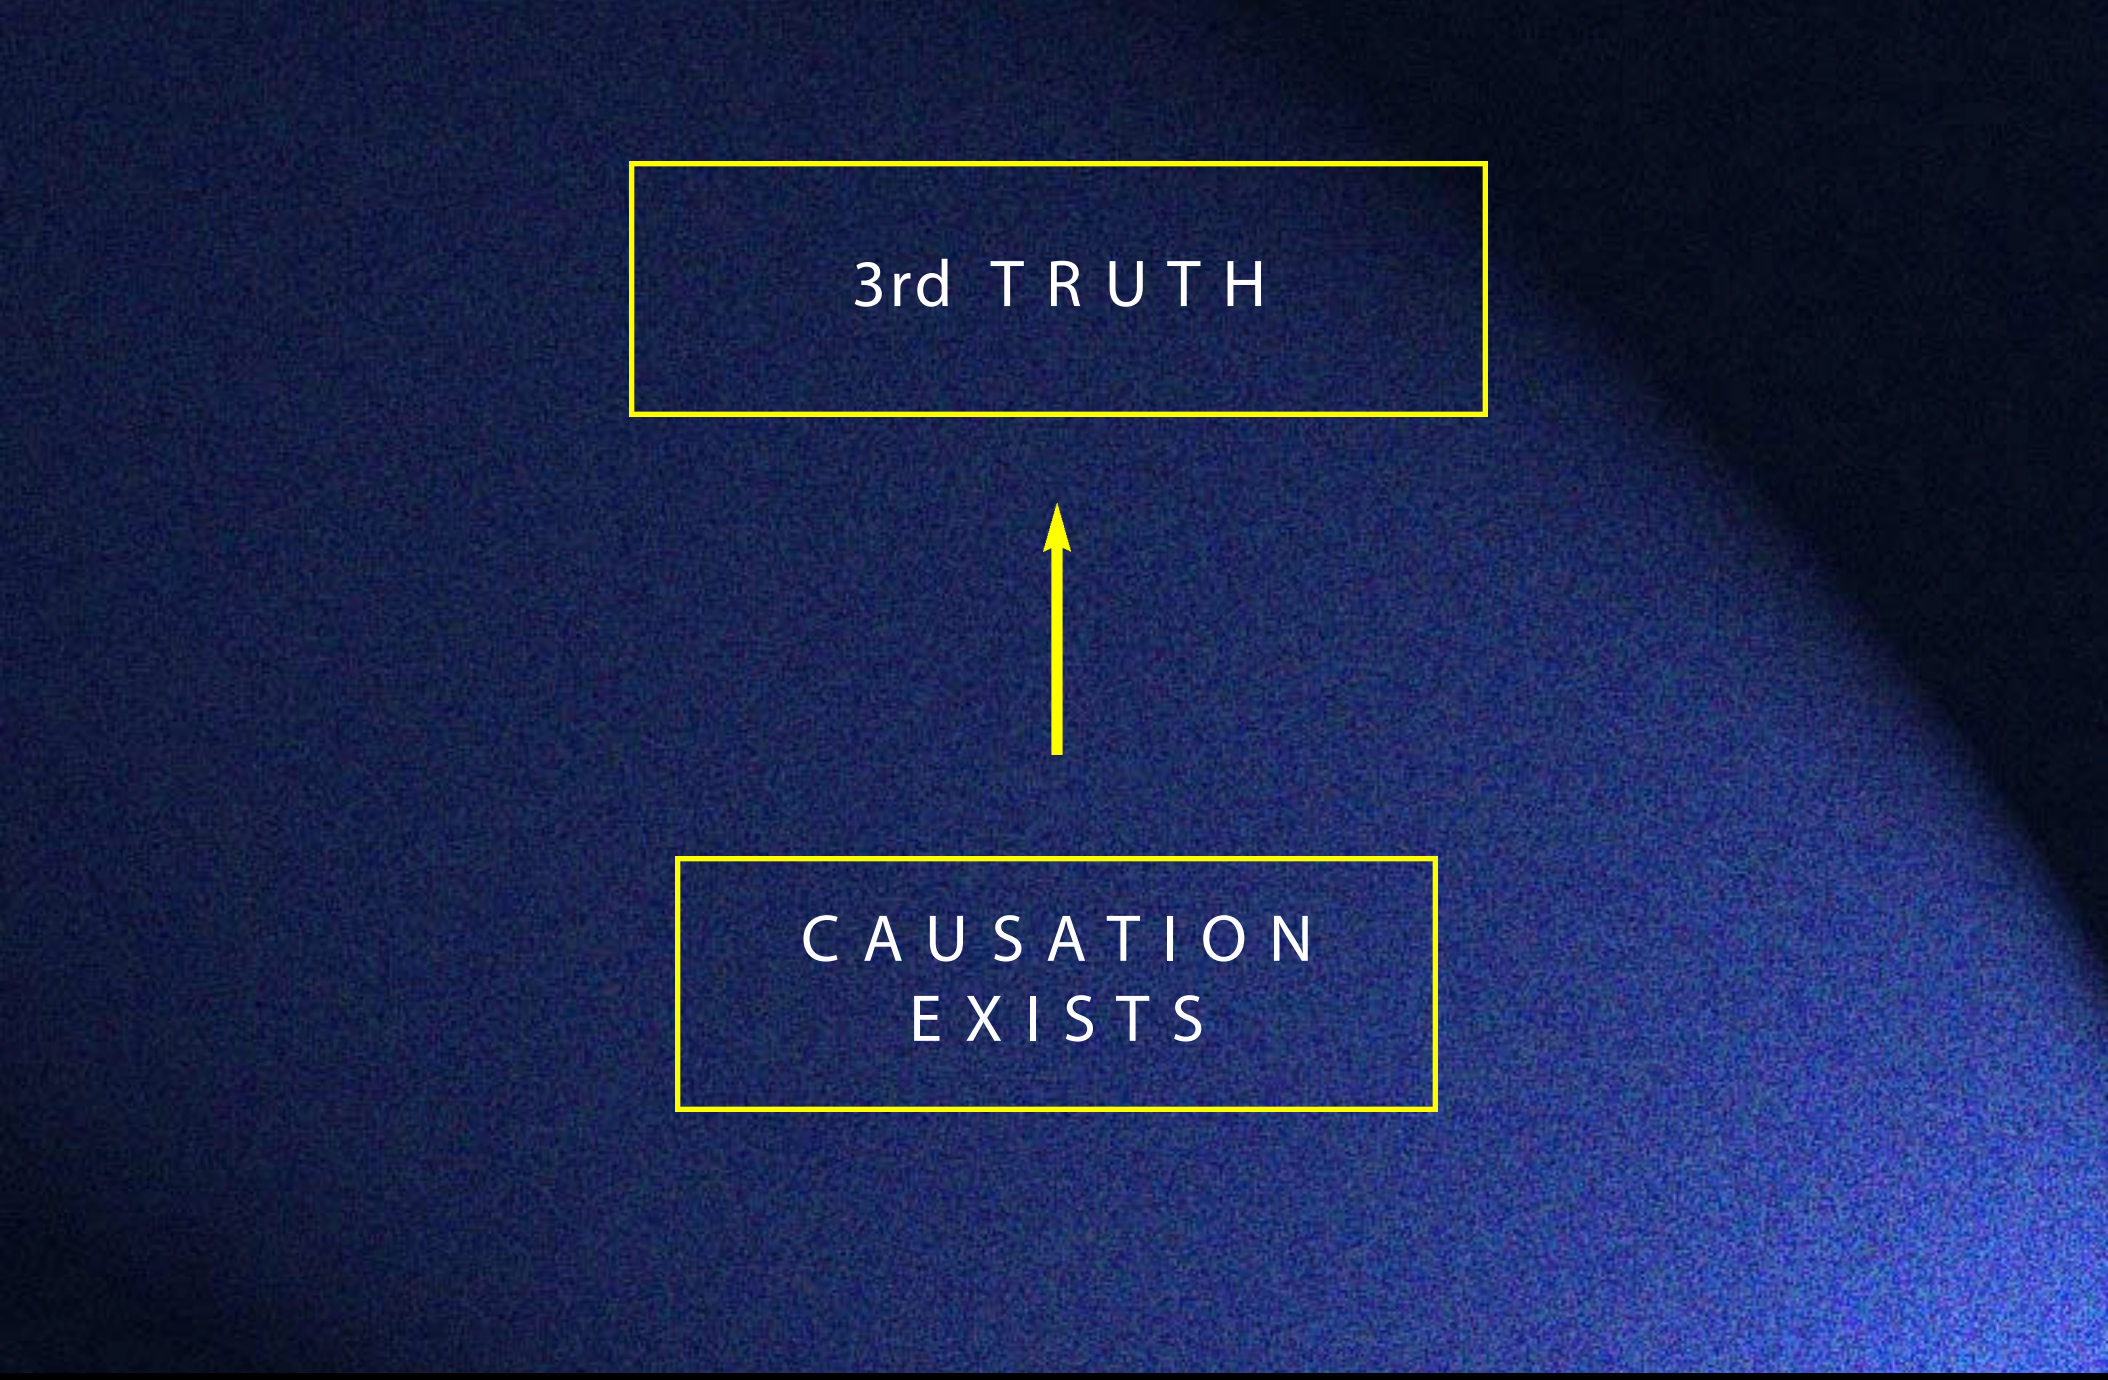
No matter how many levels of the Universe there are,



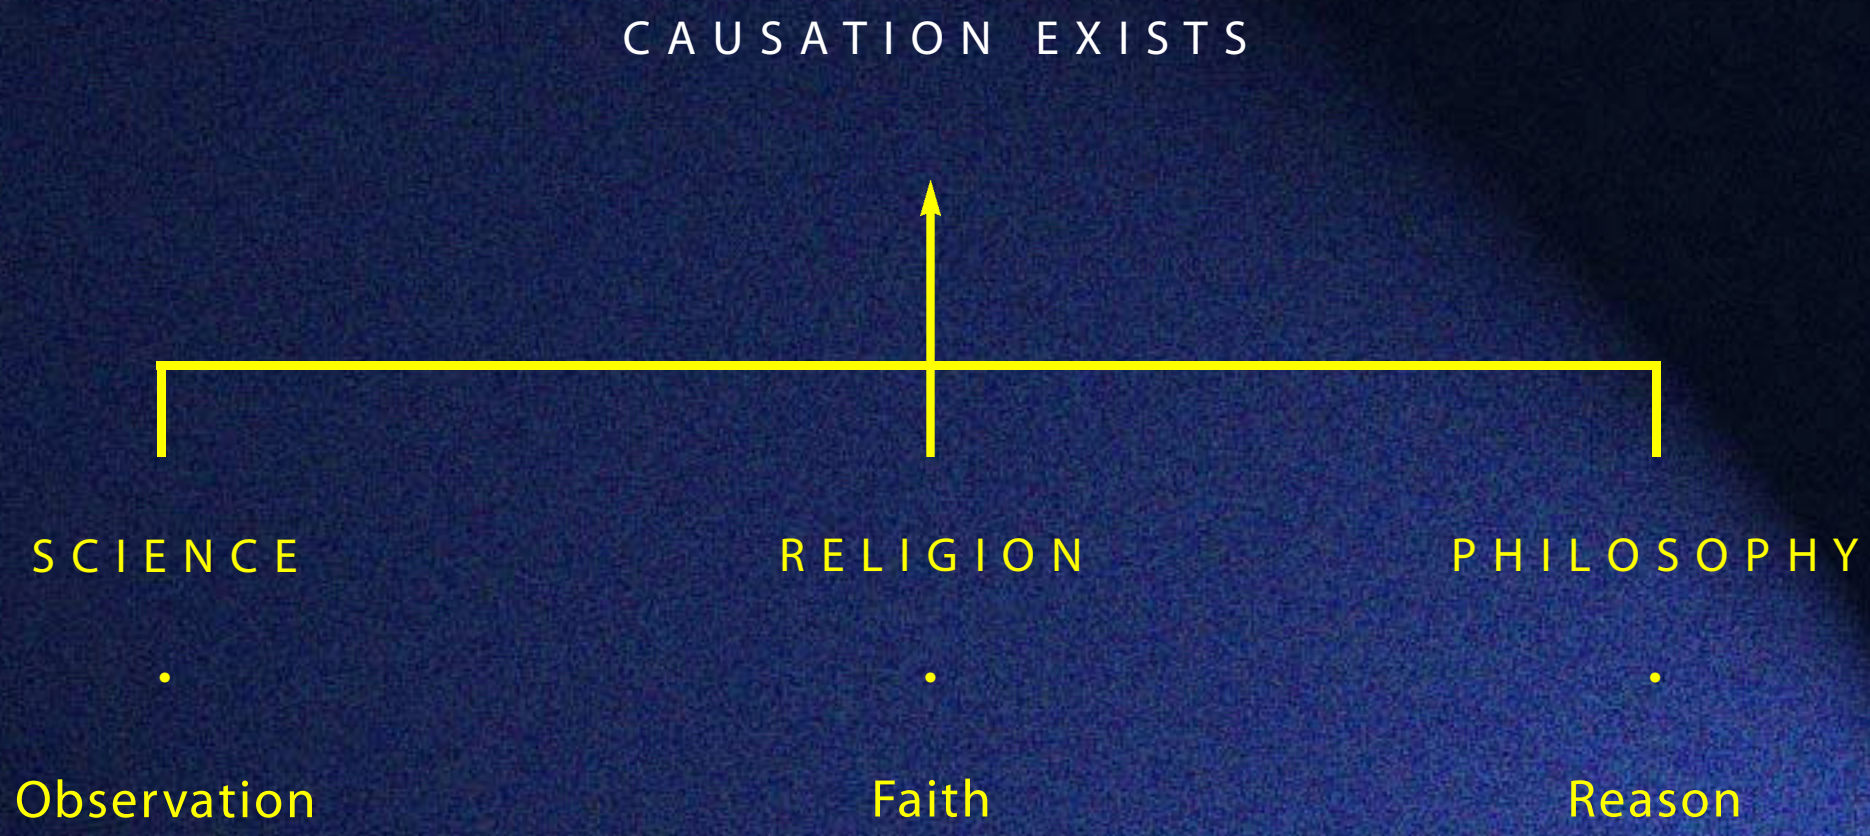
mirror images, parallel universes, sister universes, sets of universes, or dimensions to the universe we discover,



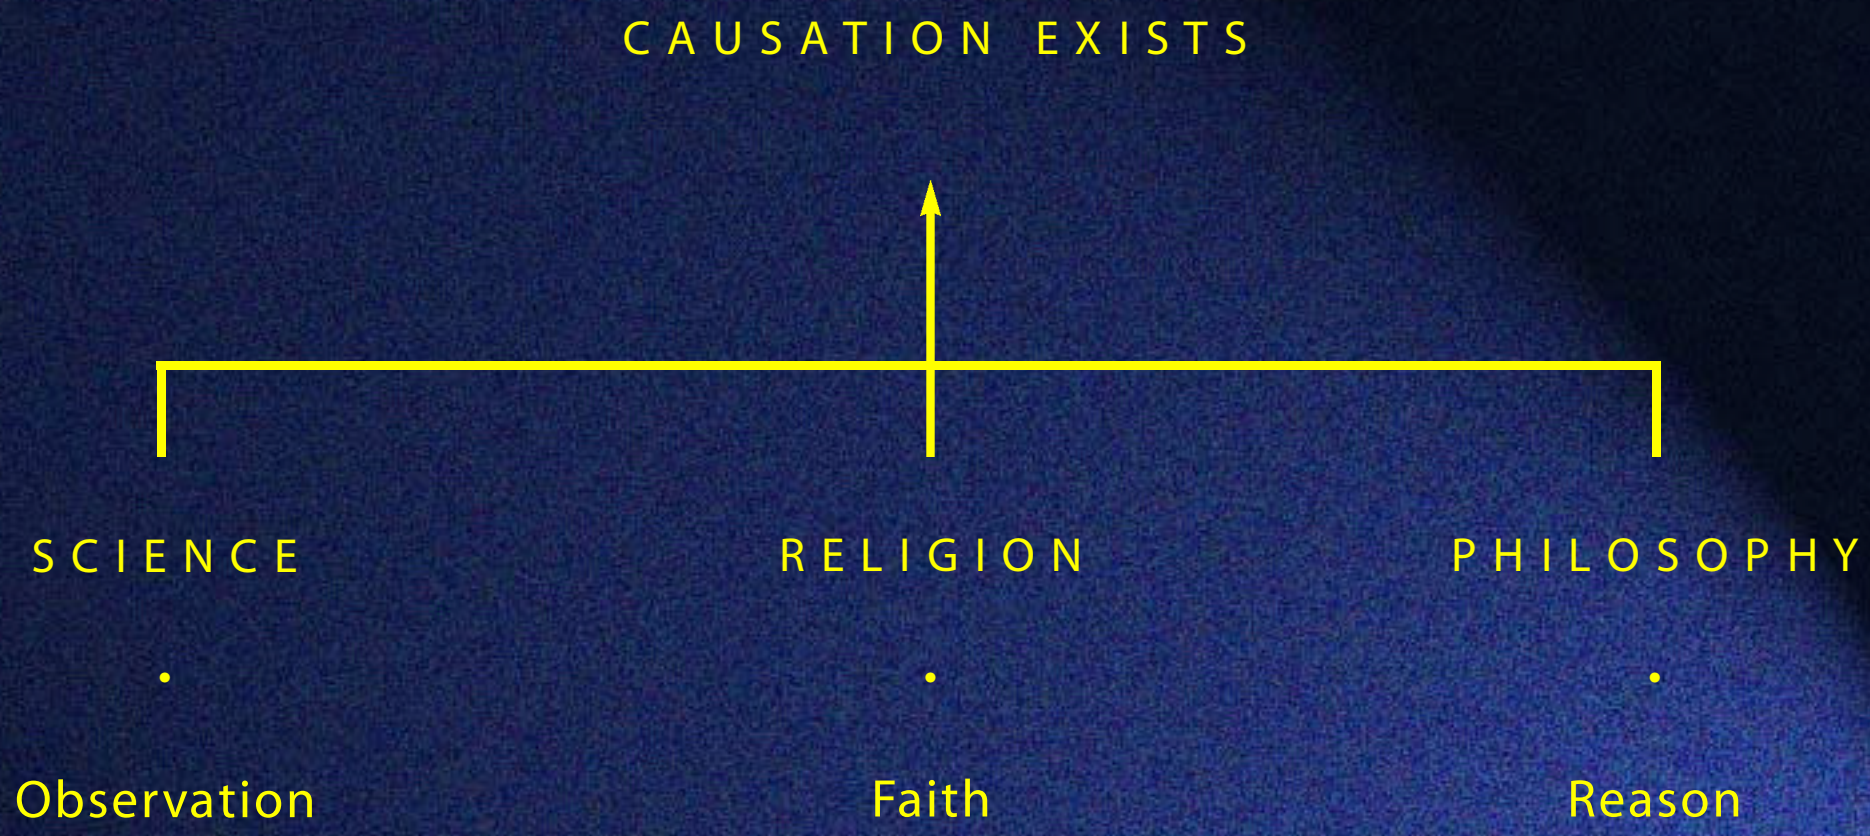
we still come back to the concept of origination, causation.



We still come back to the third ‘truth’, causation exists.



Science, religion, philosophy, all in their own way, appear to agree:



causation exists.
